SOUTH END GROUNDS, Boston, June 1.—Joe Kelley and his ball tossers were mighty glad to get back to the Hub diamond after enduring some of the worst kind of heat on the western trip, and felt elated to find that the first team to greet them was the Giants.

Kelley's men looked better than ever after such a hard pilgrimage as they had just completed, and caused admiring comment to come from the fans who had picked them as a first division aggregation.

After striking a few games around the circuit the Kelleyites came home prepared to start up a winning streak, which would send them shooting up the list and they were ready to jump on the Giants as the first victims.

Some of McGraw's regulars were on the side lines due to injuries received on their Western journey.

Bresnahan Out of It.

Roger Bresnahan, the talkative catcher, is laid up with a bruised hand and Tom Needham was McGraw's choice to wear the mask against his old teammates. Even Al Bridwell, the ex-Hub shortstop, was out of shape, but Fred Tenney was there with all the bells on. Fred was working overtime on the coaching lines that made him famous.

Crandall, the boy wonder from the Tri State League, one of the sensations of the new crop of twirlers, got ready for business, and McGraw thought the kid would be able to foil the old-time mates of Keeler's head. Dan McGann was back at his old stand, as he wanted to put some batting into McGraw's bunch, while Dahlen, Browne and Bowerman never worked hard for opposing their old leader.

NEW YORK, June 1.—Ten horses will start for the $25,000 purse in the Brooklyn Handicap at the opening of the Gravesend track to-day. The distance is a mile and a quarter. The field is the smallest that ever started in this classic event.

For the first time since the race was first contested in 1887, a three-year-old will completely dominate the betting. In no other year has a colt of this age ever played such an important part in the possible result as Celt. This handsome son of Commando is considered so much better than his opponents that he is a strong favorite in the betting at 8 to 5.

Celt's great race against Jack Atkin, when he humbled that horse of iron by beating him decisively for the jockey club stakes at Belmont Park, is responsible for the high position that Celt hold among the experts.

McCarter is Celt's chief opponent if the trained critics judge of a horse's ability is worth anything. All the other entrants, they said, had no chance to win except by the aid of an accident.

The great race that Fair Play ran in the Belmont stakes Saturday has caused much students of form to regard him favorably as a factor in the classic, and he is third choice in the betting at 7 to 1. With only ninety pounds up, he will have a hard call to beat.

Don Creole is regarded as the fastest horse of the long shot division. He ran a decidedly high class race in the Metropolitan handicap, after meeting with poor luck at the start. Since that race he has shown some very fast trials.

HUNT WOMAN HEAD OF STRANGLER BAND

Strange Crime of Which Artist and His Mother-in-Law Were Victims Stirs Paris—House Was Looted.

Special Cable to the Boston American.

PARIS, June 1.—Paris is stirred as it has not been stirred for months by the strange murder of Adolphe Steinheil, noted painter, and his mother-in-law by a band of stranglers headed by a woman. That Mrs. Steinheil, wife of the painter, who was found bound and gagged in the house with her dead husband and her mother, escaped death at the hands of the assassins is considered remarkable.

There are rumors on the boulevards that the double crime was committed as the ending of a mysterious romance. That robbery was not the real motive, although money and jewels were taken, is the belief of the detectives.

FAIR MODEL LED SLAYERS.

Mme. Steinheil recognized in the woman who led the band of stranglers, a former model of her husband's. The woman appeared most anxious that Steinheil himself should be found. To the painter's wife, bound and gagged, but able to see and hear all that was going on, the former model appeared fiendish in her desire to slay the artist.

This model is known as one of the most beautiful of the Parisian models. She had been many times at the house of Steinheil. When she and her companions broke into the Steinheil residence on the rue de Vaugirard early to-day, the woman quickly assumed command of the situation, indicated where the artist himself was to be found, and charged the men to be do their work quickly.

It is thought that Madame Steinheil's mother was killed in the effort to reach her daughter. That the artist's wife was also killed is taken as an indication that the stranglers thought she was dead when she wrenched after strong fingers had been applied to her throat.

REVENGE ONLY THEORY.

Steinheil's affairs are being gone into minutely by the detectives, who believe that they may uncover a motive for the crime. Revenge is now the only theory to be considered by the police, who have decided the robbery was committed as a payment for the three men who assisted the mysterious model.

Paris astounded many times by the daring of the so-called "Apaches," many of whom are women and who stop at nothing to accomplish their purposes, is aghast at the terrible murder of the Steinheils. Only a number of models are under surveillance, the one most sought being disappeared, and the detectives to-day admitted their inability to locate her hiding place.

Steinheil's house adjoins that of Secretary Thomas, the American postal minister. One of the chances for detection the police are surprised at the absolute purity of the forcible entrance of the gang.

The artist's house is close to a large printing works, where work is proceeding all night. A fight was planned and a timekeeper are employed there, and an almost constant stream of workmen are coming and going all the time.

DISCOVERED BY SERVANT.

The discovery was made by Steinheil's man servant, who arose at 6 a. m. to prepare breakfast. Hearing groans coming from Mme. Steinheil's sleeping apartment, he found her lying, bound hand and foot, on the bed. A gag of cotton and cloth she had succeeded by superhuman efforts in ejecting from her mouth, lay on the floor. A thin cord was around her throat. By the gag he found the body of her mother dead. He was resting on his knees, and the body was then locked up. He had been strangled by a whipcord similar to that around his wife's throat. His features were blackened and his limbs were already stiff.

In another bedroom was the dead body of Mme. Steinheil's mother, Mme. Japy. She also had been strangled and the body was fastened to the bed. Every room in the house had been ransacked and a large number of valuable articles stolen.

The servant at once gave the alarm and Chief Detective Hammond and other police officers were soon on the spot.

HAPLESS WIFE'S STORY.

To them the wife, who had barely escaped death, related in broken accent what she recalled of the tragedy.

She said that at about 4 o'clock in the morning she had been awakened by the entrance of three men and a woman, who sprang upon her like wild beasts and tied her to the bed. Evidently they had mistaken her for her daughter, sixteen years old, who was absent in the country as one of the men said: "Your father had an exorbitant sale of pictures; tell us where the money is."

She pointed to a drawer in the bureau, and meanwhile the woman muttered: "Kill her quickly! Why are you sparing her?"

Mme. Steinheil, struck by the voice, looked at the woman and seemed to recognize her as one of her husband's models.

JEWELS AND MONEY TAKEN.

Mrs. Steinheil to-day suffered a relapse from the shock of the destiny of her husband and her mother. While the stranglers left her alive is another phase of the mystery that baffles the police. Bound and gagged, she was compelled to listen to the cries of the others as they were attacked by the woman and her companion.

According to her statements, about $1,000 in money was taken, as well as jewels valued at $5,000.

One man servant slept in the house. He declares he heard nothing of the attacks.

Adolphe Steinheil was the son of the celebrated genre and portrait painter, Jean Charles Auguste Steinheil, who died in Paris in 1885. Adolphe Steinheil was about fifty years of age, and was born in Paris. He was a pupil of Bonnat and Cormon. He had painted the portraits of a host of distinguished men, including Francis Joseph, Emperor of France, who was his intimate friend.

MORAN AND SUGHRUE CONFER ON STEEL CASE

ATTORNEY FARLEY OF INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION ALSO AT SECRET CONSULTATION.

District Attorney John B. Moran held a secret conference of one hour and a quarter to-day with Counsel M. F. Sughrue and Assistant Counsel L. W. Farley of the Boston Finance Commission in the commission's office in the Pemberton building.

The conference was in regard to the "steel" cases and the so-called Boston agreement, which was investigated by the Finance Commission and which is now being prosecuted by the United States authorities.

Mr. Sughrue admitted this, saying after the conference:

"We had a talk in regard to the steel matter taking each witness separately and carefully. Mr. Moran was unaccommodative.

"The fact remained, however, that we had a conference and that's all there is for the public to know."

He was asked if he would say anything in regard to other cases which had been investigated by the Finance Commission and which had led to indictment of some Bostonians.

"It would be contempt of court for me to talk of matters pending," said the district attorney.

"When are they likely to be called for trial?" he was asked.

"How can I try them with this voice?" said Mr. Moran.

BROUILLET ON STAND DENIES HE WAS CRUEL

Dentist Declares He Never Threatened to Drown His Wife and Child.

Testifying in his own behalf in the divorce suit brought against him by his wife, Dr. George A. Brouillet, the Commonwealth avenue dentist, who is now serving two years for a murderous assault upon his brother-in-law, declared in the Superior Court this afternoon that each and every one of his wife's allegations of cruelty towards herself and child was unqualifiedly false.

He denied that he had ever threatened to drown his wife and child in a bathtub. He denied further that he had ever choked his wife almost into insensibility. He brandished a razor before the jury of witnesses that he had seized his baby by the throat and threatened to throw him into a bathtub full of water. He denied ever pointing a revolver at his wife and child, striking her with his fist or choking the baby.

Dr. Brouillet declared that his wife was of an extremely high strung and delicately nervous temperament, and testified that he had treated her for hysteria during their entire married life. He said that his wife frequently was seized with spasms, and that but off his care she would frequently have injured herself.

CLEVELAND ABLE TO GO FOR A DRIVE

PRINCETON, N. J., June 1.—Former President Cleveland was so far on the road to complete recovery to-day that he was able to go driving, and Dr. Lockwood, who is seen in constant attendance on him ordered a ride.

Mrs. Cleveland said: "Mr. Cleveland may be called on. He will remain in Princeton unless completely rested, and then we will join the children in New Hampshire. Dr. Lockwood has returned to New York and will not come again unless he is called in some emergency. If the weather continues fine Mr. Cleveland will take drive this afternoon. He passed a comfortable night and is entirely beyond danger."

A great many flowers and congratulatory messages have been received by the ex-President, as his host of friends in Princeton.

JUDGE BLAMES RELATIVES FOR PAIR'S PARTING

Orders Malden Young Man to Pay $5 Weekly to Wife and Child.

After remarking that the case "looked like too much family," Judge Bruce in the Malden court to-day ordered Fred A. Greenwood of No. 54 Brackenberry street, who was charged with non-support of herself and two-year-old child by his wife Louise, to pay $5 weekly until July 14, when the case comes up for final disposition.

The evidence presented to the court showed that Greenwood, who is a young man of about twenty-two years, was married to the complainant in Manchester, and remained in bed at the home of his father-in-law, Patrick Mardy, during which his wife was constantly at his bedside and refused him to go to work. After his recovery, the young woman says she was notified by the mother of Greenwood that she could go back to her folks, as she refused to do. The non-support charge followed.

The romantic way in which the two young people were married, about three years ago, was recalled to-day by the court proceedings. The young woman, who was formerly an operator in the Malden telephone exchange, went to Providence with Greenwood, where they were married.

The marriage was kept secret for some time, but finally leaked out, and up to the time that the non-support charge was brought was thought to be a happy all since.

RED SOX OPEN SERIES WITH NEW YORK YANKS

AMERICAN LEAGUE PARK, New York, June 1.—With a very flimsy lead to the close race, the Yankees tackled the Red Sox here on the hill top this afternoon in the first game of a series of four before the first invasion of the West begins.

With the Detroit Tigers clawing at the Yankees' shoes trying to yank them off the top rung of the championship ladder and going strong, it was up to the Yankees to go through the Bean crew rapidly as possible. The home team must win three out of four from the Beantown aggregation or they will not have any margin at all with which to start on their coming trip to the wild and woolly.

Double-header To-morrow.

There will be a double-header to-morrow afternoon between the Yankees and Red Sox instead of to-day, as originally intended. The Brooklyn Handicap, the biggest horse race of the year nevertheless, is on to-day, which decided Manager Griffith to put on the bargain day stunt for to-morrow instead of this afternoon.

The Red Sox have been going at a very fast pace of late, faster, in fact, than the Yankees, and the latter took no chances but put forth their utmost efforts from the start. The Yankees' record of last week was a most disappointing one and they were lucky to hold their lead. They feel that it is up to them to redeem themselves and they took upon the McGuire bunch as the logical victims.

Yank Pitchers Rounding To.

The Yankee twirlers, who have been under the weather, are rounding into form and all will be taken on the trip.

Slade was out to-day for the first time in nearly a fortnight and warmed up with Hogg and Newton. The latter's victory over the Bostons in Boston, when he shut the Bubbles out, gave the doctor the call to-day.

There was a fairly good sized crowd on hand, notwithstanding the counter attraction of the Brooklyn handicap.

The playing field was in splendid condition and looked as fresh and bright as possible.

The weather was a bit threatening, but the clouds did not look as if they had enough wetness to smother the game.

TRUELSON NOW DENIES AIDING MRS. GUNNESS

VERNON, Tex., June 1.—Julius C. Truelson, Jr., the New York man who made a sensational confession of complicity in the Gunness murders, has broken down and retracted his statements. Truelson's collapse came as Sheriff Smutzer of La Porte, was about to take him in charge. He declared at first that he even helped Mrs. Gunness dispose of his first wife, Mae Frances O'Reilly of Rochester, as well as other victims.

EXPLOSION ON THE ST. LOUIS

Special Cable to the Hearst News Service.

CHERBOURG, June 1.—Three firemen were badly injured to-day upon the steamship St. Louis when a boiler tube in the engine room exploded. The accident took place just as the ship was entering the roadstead.

OLDEST CAMBRIDGE WOMAN DIES AT 101

Miss Ann Wales, the oldest resident of Cambridge, died at the home of her nephew, Edwin Hale Abbot, No. 23 Reckling street, Cambridge, to-day, aged 101 years. One of her sisters lived to be 105 years old. Miss Wales was born in Beverly, moving with her parents to Cambridge a few years later. She frequently recounted events of the war of 1812, the Civil War and the Spanish-American War to the children who were fond of frequenting her home.

DOCTOR BEATS TRAIN RECORD FOR PATIENT

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 1.—All records for fast time between Chicago and Pittsburg were smashed when Dr. John Murphy, famous Chicago specialist, arrived here to-day on a special train.

The special made the run of 458 miles from Chicago in 7 hours 57 minutes. The former record for the same run, the record breaking run was made so that Dr. Murphy could attend a consultation here at the bedside of Miss Thomas Hoffman, daughter of the late Thomas H. Oliver, millionaire steel magnate, who was operated on last week for appendicitis. After the consultation Mrs. Oliverdon's condition was reported much improved.

CRASH IN FOG; 2 SHIPS SINK

LONDON, June 1.—The British steamship Queensland and the steamship Leopold, a German vessel, were so badly damaged in collisions in the fog-covered channel to-day that they sank shortly after having been towed into Dover harbor.

The Queenswood collided with the Borgo, a Spanish vessel. It is not known what boat rammed the Leonds. The crews of both ships got off in safety.

REPORT BILL FOR DELIRIUM HOSPITAL

The city of Boston is required to establish within one year a hospital building or special wards for the care of persons suffering from sudden delirium, under the provisions of a bill which the Committee on Public Charitable Institutions to-day voted to report to the Legislature. The bill is on the petition of Mrs. Alice N. Lincoln.

PHILIPS ENACTS MURDER TRIAL

By Boston American Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Gaston Philip, the wealthy young clubman, charged with killing Frank Macaboy, a colored waiter, in the Arlington Hotel on May 18, 1907, took the stand in his own defence this afternoon and told the story of that fatal shooting.

Philip demonstrated how Macaboy had held him up in the corridor.

"He ordered me to the shoulder like that," said Philip, hitting Mr. Work, his attorney, on the shoulder with his hand. "I saw that I was losing my money and I fear came over me. I knew I was alone with him.

"My only impression was one of danger. His threats came to my mind. I used the kind of tools he was. I felt that I was going down and that he would bring on me and not recovered my balance when I fired."

PROVISION DEALER IN BANKRUPTCOURT

William F. Hennessey, a provision dealer at No. 148 D street, South Boston, to-day filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court. He gave his liabilities as $17,584.85, with no property. Unsecured claims are given as $7,240.85. Most of the claims are for merchandise.

MRS. M. E. BACKUS DEAD, AGED 80

Mrs. Malvina E. Backus died to-day at the home of Judge Edgar J. Sherman of the Superior Court at Jamaica plain. Mrs. Backus was eighty years old.

JUNE WEDDING RUSH IS BEGUN

June promises to maintain its standing as the month of the year for weddings, no less than forty-one licenses being issued to-day Register McGreenan up to 2 o'clock to-day. His office is the old court house to be assigned at inserting by couples seeking licenses. Most of the June weddings are church affairs. Register McGreenan says.

PROMOTES COLE TO HEAD WIRE FORCE

Miss Hibbard announced to-day that he will ask to the Board of Aldermen next Monday the name of James E. Cole of No. 61 Pelham street, Dorchester, to be superintendent of wires. The position carries a salary of $5,000 a year. Mr. Cole is at present chief inspector in the department at $2,000 a year.

SENATOR BELL GETS SCHOOLHOUSE JOB

Mayor to-day reappointed R. Clipston Sturgis of Ward 11 as schoolhouse commissioner for a term of three years beginning to-day. Senator Tilton S. Bell will be named for the place now held by Thomas A. Mullen, just as soon as the Legislature adjourns. Mayor Hibbard stated that in the future he expected the schoolhouse commissioners to give their whole time to their positions.

HUNTING GOULD WITH WARRANT

NEW YORK, June 1.—When Kingston Gould, son of George Gould, failed to appear in court to-day to answer to a charge of violating the speed laws, Justice Wyatt of the Special Session Court issued a bench warrant for his arrest and declared the $100 bail bond furnished by Frederick Kruse, jr., forfeited. Gould was arrested May 14, for exceeding his machine on Madison avenue. He failed to appear last week and again to-day.

PRESENT PICTURES TO RINDGE SCHOOL

At the Rindge Manual Training School to-day Gennetta Carman, president of the senior class, acting for the class, presented to the school, through John W. Wood, jr., principal, four beautiful stained glass windows. Principal Wood accepted the gift in a brief speech, and there were short addresses by Mayor Weaver, Superintendent of Schools Bates and Charles H. Morse.

THREE AUTOISTS FINED.

Edward E. Chapman, Leander Spinney and George L. Silby, all of Boston, were arraigned in the Quincy District Court to-day on the charge of overspeeding in Milton. Chapman was fined $15 and appealed; Silby paid $15, and Chapman $15.

SEEK NEW TRIAL FOR CONSPIRACY CASE

Judge Dodge in the United States District Court to-day gave a hearing for a new trial for Henry Burnham of Methuen and Mitchell Northrup of Providence, R. I., who were recently found guilty of a charge of conspiracy to bring an alien into this country in violation of the contract labor laws. Counsel contended that the government case failed to prove a conspiracy. The decision will be announced later.

BENCH WARRANT FOR PRICE

WASHINGTON, June 1. A bench warrant was issued by the Supreme Court of the district to-day for Theodore H. Price, the millionaire cotton king from Memphis, Frederick A. Peckham, all of New York, for their removal to Washington to answer to a contempt in connection with a "leak" on cotton reports by the Department of Agriculture.

'ICE WATER MAN' IN COURT.

Arelie Thayer, Quincy "Ice Water Man," who was arrested at Hough's Neck for disturbing the peace, Sunday, had his case placed on file in the Quincy District Court. Arelie was making a speech on the steamboat landing to a crowd of over 1,000, refused to stop when asked to by the police, and was arrested.

MEDITERRANEAN RECORDS BROKEN

NEW YORK, June 1.—The new Lloyd Italiano liner Principe di Udine arrived in port to-day on her maiden trip from Genoa and Naples, and broke all records for the run. She covered the distance in seven hours. She did the trip in eleven days and two hours. The Principe di Udine is the most luxurious vessel now in the Italian service.

FLOOD WIPES OUT MEXICAN VILLAGE

CITY OF MEXICO, June 1.—Floods have wrought great damage in the neighborhood of the city of Tampula the past few days. Eighteen people are said to have been drowned and the village of Panuco entirely wiped out of existence.

COUNTRY CLUB RACES.

One of the finest list of entries ever made for the annual race meeting at the Country Club is that which has been received for the meeting which will be held there on June 13, 15 and 17. All of the events have filled surprisingly well and in nearly all of them a big field will face the starter.

HEARST GAINS IN RECOUNT

Nineteen More Votes Allowed in Five Ballot Boxes To-day.

TOTAL INCREASE NOW 104

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 1.—Five more ballot boxes gave William Randolph Hearst a gain of nineteen more votes in the mayoralty recount before Justice Lambert in the Supreme Court to-day. His total then was 104 votes, gained since the beginning of the recount.

One of the boxes opened to-day was from the eighth election district of the Sixth Assembly district, a stronghold of "Little Tim" Sullivan. In this district Mr. Hearst gained six votes. By the official canvass Hearst had 42 votes and McClellan 27. The recount gave Hearst 45 votes, and cut McClellan's total down to 322, making a gain of six for Hearst.

Will Hold Court at Night.

The justice has declared his intention of holding court six days a week, and at night, if necessary, to get the count finished. He may go so far as to take charge of a table himself in order to facilitate the work.

The boast of the lawyers for "Mayor" McClellan that it would be a year before a box was opened was a bit premature. With all the delays that the men engaged to prevent the opening of the boxes is now warrants proceedings could invent, it required only six and one-half weeks to get the first box into court and have the ballots counted.

Their boast, when the whole of the first day was consumed in the opening and counting of two boxes, that it would require another year or more to count the ballots, will prove as idle. The second day of the recount six boxes were opened and on Friday, when the court closed, the contents of eight boxes had been recanvassed.

The facts thus far disclosed by the opening of the sixteen ballot boxes, wherein William R. Hearst gained eighty-five votes, showing conclusively that the conspiracy to defeat the will of the people of the election was widespread, has cast a wet blanket over the attorneys for McClellan.

That the boxes thus far opened are all from the lower districts of Manhattan means little as to the limitation of the fraud.

It is a known fact that in the election there were Republican leaders of uptown districts who always have been hand and glove with Tammany and Republican election officers who worked together. Some of these are the so-called "silk stocking" districts.

Predict Startling Disclosures.

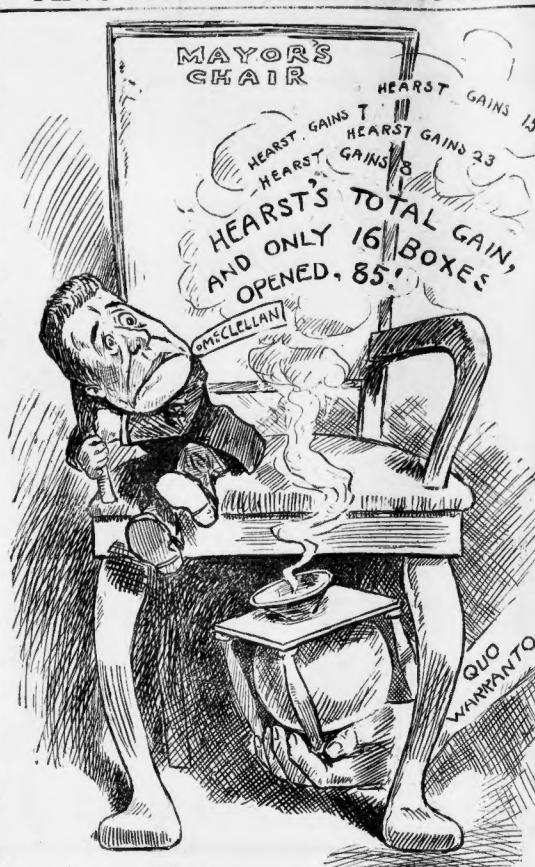
It is predicted that the fraud that will be disclosed in these districts, where Tammany and Republican election officers worked together, will be startling in many cases. With the Republican ticket hopelessly in the rear of the count, it has been claimed the Republican leaders, who from time to time have been termed assistant Tammany men connived at irregularities in the count of the ballots.

Particularly is this true of Brooklyn, it is asserted, where the Republican and the Woodruff machines work like a pair of wheels on the same axle. Here the count in some districts is said to have been treated as a ballot for Mr. Hearst and the remainder of the ticket which he headed being thrown out on every protest, and every ballot that possibly could be so turned counted for McClellan.

BRITISH WARSHIPS TO CONVOY FLEET

SYDNEY, N. S. W., June 1.—The British cruisers Cambrian and Prometheus will meet the American fleet at Suva, Fiji Islands. The cruiser Powerful will meet the American fleet at Auckland.

ANOTHER BOMB OUTRAGE!



AERONAUT BEACHY WILL RACE AUTO

NEW YORK, June 1.—L. Beachy, the airship man, who is to race an automobile out of Jamaica on Tuesday, makes a trial ascension this afternoon to go over the course of the race. The race on Thursday is expected to cause tremendous interest on Long Island, and is held in connection with the Long Island subway celebration.

VADERLAND, REPORTED WRECKED, IS SAFE

DENSE FOG DELAYED RED STAR LINER, WITH 1,600 ABOARD, ON TRIP FROM ANTWERP.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 1.—The Red Star liner Vaderland, with 1,600 passengers aboard, reported in collision in the North Sea, bound west, passed Flushing, Holland, at 10 a. m. to-day, according to a dispatch to the line's officials in New York. She had not been in collision. According to this cablegram all on board were well and only few delayed her.

"There is nothing the matter with the Vaderland except that she is proceeding westward quite as usual," said David Lindsay of the Red Star line. "How the reports that she had met with an accident got abroad on the other side is a mystery.

"The Vaderland was delayed in leaving Antwerp by a heavy fog, and she had to steam slowly all the way into the North Sea. The dispatch received by us to-day from Flushing dispels any rumor that the vessel has had any mishap."

The Vaderland was due to make her first stop at Dover on Sunday at 10 a. m. When nothing was heard from the boat messages were sent in every direction and tugs were despatched from Dover to search for her.

None of the arriving ships reported seeing her. Brussels and Paris heard that the liner had been wrecked.

Lloyds made frantic efforts to get into communication with the Vaderland by wireless or with any of the channel craft which should have spoken her. They were unsuccessful and the anxiety for her safety increased every hour.

A dense fog lying over the channel and almost tied up steamship traffic. A number of minor collisions were reported.

The rumor that the Vaderland had been cast up on Goodwin Sands, where she went ashore on March 4, 1907, came from Paris on the arrival of the Dover-Ostend mail steamer. Passengers on this boat reported seeing a big steamship fast on the shoals.

As the Vaderland is equipped with wireless and no messages were received from her, considerable anxiety was aroused in the rumor that she had been wrecked.

Goodwin Sands are known as the shipgraveyard of the English channel. They are located on the north sea coast of England, not far from Dover, and seven miles off Ram's Gate. They are quicksands.

When the Vaderland went asnore a year ago she was aground eight hours, but cleared virtually undamaged.

ARRESTED FOR COUSIN'S DEATH

RUTLAND, Vt., June 1.—After an all-night search, Andrew Fusco, about thirty years old, was taken into custody, charged with having killed his supposed cousin, Antonio Fusco. The chase for Fusco terminated near Hydeville, where he was overtaken by Deputy Sheriff E. M. Polley of Fairhaven. Deputies had been scouring the vicinity of the city since the discovery of the body of Antonio Fusco.

ARMY MEN TAKE HAND AT SUNDAY BASEBALL

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., June 1.—The army men at Constitution, Newcastle, are now following the navy in Sunday sports and played the first baseball game at the post yesterday, where a large crowd gathered from Portsmouth and the surrounding towns to witness the game.

BOLT SLAYS MAN AND SON.

QUANCY, Ill., June 1.—H. A. McCune, a farmer, residing sixteen miles north, and his ten-year-old son, were killed by lightning, their bodies not being found until to-day. McCune and his son were working in a field and sought the shelter of a tree, when stricken down by the bolt.

5 MOTORISTS PAY $15 FINES

Charged with over-speeding in Norwood while going and coming from the auto races at Readville on Memorial Day, five autoists were arraigned in the Dedham District Court before Judge Hutchinson to-day and were all fined $15.

FOUGHT WITH KNIFE AT PICNIC; FINED

As the result of a cutting affray at a picnic given at Oakland Grove, Eben Bedlam, on Saturday, under the auspices of the Lithian Society, Arnold Bowman of No. 22 Gurney street, Roxbury, was arraigned in the Dedham Court to-day, and was fined $20. Bowman, together with Joseph Mellenberg of No. 65 Terrace street, Roxbury, the victim of the attack, was arrested Saturday evening after a fight between the two men, in which Mellenberg was severely cut about the head.

PLEAD FATHER BE FREED OF CONTEMPT

Sequel of Mother's Seizure of McLean Boy at North Station.

As a sequel to the sensational scene at the North Station Saturday night when Mrs. Fred O. Keinarde seized her six year-old son, Walter McLean, who had been taken from her three years ago as the boy was being brought from Nova Scotia, exclusively told in the SUNDAY AMERICAN, was the petition filed before Judge Fox in the Superior Court to-day that Allen S. McLean be purged of contempt. McLean is serving a three months sentence in the county jail for contempt in having taken the boy out of the jurisdiction of the court when the mother had been awarded custody of the lad after the divorce.

Attorneys George R. Farnum and John J. O'Connor appeared for McLean. Mr. Farnum told how he had made arrangements to have the boy brought from Inverness, N. S., to be turned over to Emory Gibbs, attorney for Mrs. Keinarde, the mother.

"It was planned to do this to-day," Mr. Farnum explained, "but owing to mistakes for developments on Saturday night, it can't be done because the mother already has the boy. Mrs. Keinarde received information that the boy was to arrive at the North station, went there with her husband and forcibly took the boy from his great uncle."

The attorney explained that by this action he believed that the father had purged himself of contempt and asked that a writ of habeas corpus be issued to permit him to be brought into court and enter plea for his discharge from custody. The attorneys described how the anxious mother who had not seen her boy for three years, suddenly appeared and upset legal calculations by clasping him in her arms and refusing absolutely to give him up.

The court said that the reason for the long absence of McLean was for the purpose of having the boy restored to his mother and he saw no reason now why McLean should not be discharged.

A writ of habeas corpus will be issued and McLean will be brought from the Charles street jail to the courthouse tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, when Judge Fox will render his decision on the petition for the father's discharge.

In the meantime, Mrs. Keinarde and her boy are having a great time at the Keinarde home, No. 13 Everett avenue, Dorchester. Both are reported the happiest persons in Boston.

BETTER HOUSES FOR WORKERS, DUCHESS' AIM

Consuelo of Marlborough Seeks Carnegie's Aid in English Movement.

LONDON, June 1.—Prominent English society women, headed by the Duchess of Marlborough, who was Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, and Lady Henry Somerset, have taken up the plan for better houses for the working classes that was abandoned four years ago by the national housing council, chiefly through the efforts of the Socialist members of the council, who were in the majority.

The council carried down the proposal of aid from Andrew Carnegie, alleging that the money would be used to consolidate opposition. The women have no such objections and they announced to-day that they had hopes of getting a $1,000,000 donation from Carnegie. They placed the matter before him shortly after his arrival at Skibo Castle and they found him in sympathetic mood.

Should Carnegie make the proposed gift the money would be placed under the provision of trustees appointed by the government. The women declare they are in a position to persuade the government to transfer power on the trustees to obtain land for suitable settlements.

HELD ON CHARGE OF THEFT OF DIAMOND

Charged with the larceny of a diamond pin valued at $75 from Major Ainsley R. Hooper of Lexington street, East Boston, on May 22, Frank O'Dell, 20 years old, of Chelsea, giving his address as No. 105 Sterling street, Roxbury, was held in $1,000 by Judge Clary in the East Boston Court to-day.

GLACIA CALLA SUIT AROUSES SOCIETY FOLK

Edward E. Dennett, Acussed by Her of Embezzlement, Is a Wealthy Fitchburg Man.

Special to the Boston American.

FITCHBURG, June 1.—Society and business circles of this city are deeply stirred over the news of the arrest in Portsmouth, N. H., of Edward E. Dennett, the wealthy Fitchburg real estate dealer, on a charge of embezzlement brought by Glacia Calla, the grand opera singer and heroine of the famous Carkins alleged murder case.

Dennett is treasurer of the Fitchburg Granite Company and has accumulated a fortune in real estate in this section.

The charge on which Dennett was arrested yesterday was that Dennett agreed to finance Glacia Calla on her coming opera tour and that he took a mortgage on her home at Bayside, Newington, N. H., the famous Summer residence where George E. Carkins, Glacia's brother, met death on the night of January 2 last.

Glacia charges that Dennett disposed of the mortgage on her property, giving her $1,000; that he took a second mortgage for $2,000, and that he also has a valuable necklace belonging to her.

Dennett was arrested on a capias writ, but by agreement of counsel he was released on his promise to return the second mortgage.

The Carkins death case, in which Glacia Calla was a central figure, was the sensation of the State. She was married to Paul Elmo Roy, a Frenchman. She, Roy and Carkins were at her Summer home at Bayside last Christmas week. Carkins was shot. It was given out that he committed suicide. The body was buried and the Roys left for New York.

Later Glacia Calla gave out a sensational statement, in which she charged Roy, her husband, with having shot her brother. Roy had gone to France, leaving Gallon by the New Hampshire authorities led to Roy being indicted for murder of Carkins, and a requisition warrant being asked for him. Proceedings are still on before the French courts.

GLACIA CALLA AS SHE IS TO-DAY.

MILLS ON FULL TIME SCHEDULE

35,000 Workers All Over New England Rejoice in Prosperity's Return.

IT HAS COME TO STAY

From all over New England to-day come reports of resumption of full time schedules in many factories, fully 35,000 workers being benefited by this and other wage conditions which signal the return of prosperity after months of semi-idleness in the mills.

The welcome change is due largely to an increased demand for cotton goods. The long period of curtailment has depleted stocks in the hands of jobbers, and the Spring trade has revived business with the retailers.

Among the cotton mills which resumed work on full time to-day were the Naumkeag of Salem, employing 1,500 hands, who have been working only four days a week for two months.

The cotton mills of the B. B. & R. Knight Company, which have been running on forty-one hours a week for twelve weeks, went on a full-time schedule of fifty-eight hours.

The increase affects 6,000 operatives in Providence, Woonsocket, River Point, Arctic, Natick, Lippit, Pontiac, Centreville, White Rock and Jackson, R. I., and at Hebronville, Dodgeville, Readville and Manchaug, Mass. The Crompton Company's cotton plant at Crompton, R. I., which has been running four days a week; the Warwick Mills of Centreville, R. I., and the Warren Company of Warren, R. I., have also adopted full-time schedules.

New Hampshire Feels Boom.

In Nashua, N. H., the Jackson and Nashua companies increased their running time from twenty-nine to forty hours a week to-day. They employ 4,000 persons.

The Berkshire cotton mills of Adams, with 3,000 on the payroll, are on full time this week. They have been running three days a week for some time.

The McLellan Hosiery Company mills of Northampton, which have been shut down for several weeks, started in part-time mills this morning.

In Fall River five seven cotton mills of the Fall River Iron Works Company, employing 5,000, have resumed on a full-time schedule after operating on half-time two months. Many of the other Fall River mills expect to be running full time within two weeks.

The Cohannet yarn mills of Taunton have adopted yarn mills of Taunton have adopted a schedule of five days weekly, in place of one of three days, and the Weir stove foundry of that city will start on full time this week.

More than 900 granite workers went back to work in the Quincy granite quarries to-day as a result of the final settlement of a strike which has been on since May 14.

The mill business in Rhode Island is much improved.

On Overtime Schedule.

In the American Woolen Company plants all of the departments are being operated four and five days a week, with overtime in some of the preparatory departments.

The Crown and Snowden Mills are working overtime, and it is said that there are enough orders in sight to warrant the operation of the mills overtime for the definite period.

At the Riverside Mills there is more activity than at any of the other plants of the company. Woolen machinery, combing and carding departments are running all night three nights a week, and some of the other departments are running four seven days in the week.

At the Earnscliffe Mill the rush of business still continues, and the mill is being operated with full forces both day and night.

The building of the Pocasset Combing Company will be completed within a few days and be in readiness for business about July.

The Joslin Mills at Merino, Dyerville, Richmond, Rockland, Seituate, Olneyville and Pomeganssett are being operated on full time.

There is an improvement in the condition at the National Processing Mills, but as yet there has been no change from the working schedule.

Demand for Employment.

The five-day-a-week schedule at the Valley Worsted Company is still being followed, but the departments are running in full during this period.

The demand for employment by the thousands of mill operatives in Olneyville has caused the management of the Riverside Mills to refuse admittance to the mills to those seeking employment. Beginning today those looking to get work must apply to the office of the plant on Aleppo street.

At the Atlantic Mills there seems to be no change. It is said that fully 200 looms are idle, and that the other 2,200 looms in the mills are running only two days a week.

After being on part time for several months, all cotton operatives in Connecticut resumed work to-day on full time.

WEASEL'S RAIDS WORRY MALDEN

Several residents of the Oak Grove section of Malden are losing valuable fowl by the wholesale as a result of having their coops raided during the night by a weasel.

One of the heavier losers is Horace A. Holden of No. 11 Winter street, who has lost a large number of valuable Plymouth Rocks within the past week. On entering his coops one morning during the past week, Mr. Holden discovered eight fowl lying dead on the ground. Not knowing the cause of their death, he watched that night for the cause and found that a weasel entered the coop.

He was unable to catch the animal and so set a trap, but since setting it found the animal has not put in an appearance.

3 RETIRE FROM AMALGAMATED

NEW YORK, June 1.—At the annual meeting of the Amalgamated Copper Company in Jersey City to-day, James Stillman, head of the National City Bank, George E. Church and J. M. Judson retired as directors, and their places were filled by the selection of Benjamin D. Thayer, John D. Ryan and J. S. Judson. All of the remaining directors were re-elected.

ANCIENTS OUT WITH FIFE AND DRUM AT 4 A. M.

Snapshot taken at 4 o'clock this morning as squad of famous Boston organization halted for a "drumming up" in front of the Parker House.

ANCIENTS PARADE; MEET AT OLD SOUTH CHURCH

TURN OUT AT DAWN FOR "DRUMMING UP," BUT COMPLY WITH EDICT OF O'MEARA.

Members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company are to-day observing the 276th anniversary of the organization of that famous body.

Assembling at the noon hour at Faneuil Hall, after a few members who stopped at the Parker House had rejoined the "drummed up" softly, in accordance with the edict of Police Commissioner O'Meara, at 4 o'clock this morning, there were few officers and privates missing. It was not recorded that any of the members had turned out at the early hour when the fifers and drummers went to bed and the "drumming up."

Faneuil Hall, State House, Common and Parker House, designated as possible by the Commissioner, and did the "drumming up."

Soon after 1 o'clock this afternoon Major Henry Gregory Jordan, in command of the company, gave the command to march. Up State, Washington and Beacon streets the Ancient way of South Market, Commercial, and Washington and Beacon streets the Ancients moved on to the State House where a halt was called while acting Governor Eben S. Draper and members of his staff joined the procession to the new Old South Church.

Drumhead on the Common.

Acting Governor Draper was accompanied by Adjutant-General Brigham, Colonel William C. Capelle, Commander William H. Edgar, Major Ira Vaughan, Major Walter Scott Hale, Major Philip S. Sears and Major Thomas Aldrich.

From the new Old South the company moved through Beacon, School, Washington, Milk, Congress, High, Summer, Winter, Tremont and Boylston streets to the church.

Here the sermon of the day was delivered by Rev. John W. Suter of Winchester. Following the services at the church the command moves by way of Boylston, Arlington and Beacon streets to the Common, where the drumhead election and the commission of officers take place.

Major James A. Davis will be the new commander of the company and he will be at the head of the line when the ceremonies of the election and review over, the company moves back to Faneuil Hall, where the annual banquet is served at 6:30.

The return route is through Beacon and Tremont streets, Cornhill and Dock square.

Details for the Day.

At the church, Lieutenant Emery Grover, Lieutenant Benjamin Cole, Jr., Lieutenant Frank H. Mosley, Captain George O. Sorgis, Lieutenant Charles S. Damrell, Sergeant Lieutenant Charles S. Damrell, Sergeant W. B. Lucas, Sergeant George J. Quinsler, Sergeant E. G. Foster, William Carter, William Tyzer.

At the common, Captain F. W. Dallinger, Lieutenant Charles H. Forrer, Lieutenant Frank P. Stone, Lieutenant E. A. Hammond, Lieutenant H. H. Newcomb, Sergeant J. W. Adams, Sergeant George Adams.

At the banquet, Captain John C. Potter, Lieutenant Samuel A. Neill, Dr. Robert H. Upham, Sergeant John W. Stewart, C. H. Upham, Sergeant John W. Stewart, C. H. Bradley, William H. Robertson, Edward A. Bradley.

General Samuel A. Lawrence, detailed as personal escort to the Governor; Governor, Colonel H. L. Kincaide officer of the day.

There was promise of a little conflict between Police Commissioner O'Meara, who had a fixed idea of a promiscuous "drumming up" of the town, and those officers of the Ancients who wanted to follow the old custom and have the fife and drum corps visit the homes of a number of members and arouse them in the early hours of the morning. Commissioner O'Meara said that the Ancients couldn't and the Ancients said they couldn't.

But they didn't. It was ordered by Commander Jordan that the edict of the commissioner should be respected and that only the places he specified should the "drummed up."

This reveille is supposed—or was supposed to take place in front of the homes of members of the Company, to rouse them from slumber and bring them forth to the defence of whatever might be imperiled. Time was when this morning reveille had a stern and martial significance. Actual dangers threatened the community from time to time.

Present Day Perils.

At present the dangers to our liberties have changed to things that cannot be obviated by a morning drum-beat, such as the peril of the automobile, of tainted milk, of falling into the subway excavation, of the jam on the Elevated and such latter-day contingencies. But the annual reveille has been held in commemoration of the old custom.

But, as Boston citizens grew more and more fond of sleep, protest was made at this fife and drum itinerary every year on the anniversary of the company's organization. Last year, in compliance with the request of the commissioner, the fife and drum corps got the long roll only as far as the State House, Faneuil Hall and a few other places. This year the commissioner raised that his position was the same as before and that the residents of Boston should not be assaulted by drum-corps racket at 4 a. m., even if members of the company were not awakened.

Fifers Out Early.

Seeing neither of their honorable rights fading away, the Ancients protested this year. It was reported that the drums would drum and the fifes would fife when they reached the commissioner or no commissioner; that the Ancients were well within their rights and that they would see what we would see," and so on.

But the commissioner won.

At 4 a. m. to-day shortly before the fife and drum corps left Boston, the fife and drum corps assembled at Faneuil Hall, the Ancients' armory. There were Brevet Major General Samuel Dennis, Colonel Frederick H. Knowlton, in charge of the corps, and the following drummers and fifers: Fred G. Weitz, George Williams, Timothy G. Murphy, Everett B. Kebbe, Edward Sherman, Charles Alcock, Harry Clary, Charles Rogers and H. M. Ellis.

An occasional policeman, sundry early market men and a handful of newspaper men and photographers, comprised the audience, when, at 4:22, the corps sounded its first reveille.

Then they went to the Soldiers' Monument on Boston Common, and marched up it in regular formation, but strolling along the sidewalk.

Arouse Campers on Common.

At the monument they began playing at 5 o'clock sharp, rousing from morning slumber a few score gentlemen who had been asked to camp out on the Common for reasons best known to themselves.

Some of these gentry newly arrived in Boston, rubbed their eyes, startled at the unfamiliar vocalists and wondered why on earth anyone would get up and fife and drum at sunrise when he presumably had a good bed in which to sleep.

Some of the long-time campers explained that this had been going on since a year before the fire, which was the disgust of the newcomers was too deep for adequate expression.

Next to the State House steps The drum corps mounted comfortably on the broad steps till 5:30, when they played the third reveille. Some nearby residents of Mt. Vernon, Beacon, Joy, Hancock and Bowdoin streets might have turned uneasily in their sleep at the rat-tat-tat of the drums and the shrill squeaks of the fifes, but, if so, some seemed to be outrageously disturbed.

Arouse Sparrows in Chorus.

At 5:40 o'clock the revellers (not revellers) were on the School street side of the Parker House. That pogod hostelry was not visibly agitated. The famous barroom on the northwest corner of the building was mute, the only signs of life there being the bar-keep on the opening watch who was polishing glasses and otherwise preparing for 6 o'clock.

Across in King Chapel Cemetery, a few sparrows in wonderful heart chirped and twittered as the audience. The Parker House reveille was over. Some score members of the Ancients were quartered there for the night, but if they heard the morning call, they gave no sign.

That was all. The fourth and last reveille ended, the drummers and fifers started down School street, having dusted it plenty of time before 6 a. m.

YALE BEGINS GRADUATION

NEW HAVEN, Ct., June 1.—The first of the Yale commencement exercises began today with the celebration of the academic and graduation program of the divinity and art schools.

The Mersick prize contest in sermonic elocution was held in Marquand chapel. There are fifteen members in the divinity school graduating class. The graduation exercises proper will be held to-morrow, while the arts school will complete its commencement to-night.

PRAISE LEAGUE IN COMPELLING MERGER ACTION

Members of Party on Coast Congratulate Bay State Brothers on Victory.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—Congratulations have been sent by the Independence League of California to the Independence League of Massachusetts upon the success of the party in the Eastern State in forcing the Government to proceed against an illegal railroad monopoly in New England.

Frank J. Sullivan, Granville S. McFarland, the Massachusetts Independence League bill evidence before United States Attorney Thomas Fremch in 1907 of a violation of its laws by the New Haven Railroad Company, in gobbling up large blocks of Boston & Maine Railroad stock in order to create a far-reaching monopoly.

The matter was reported to President Roosevelt by Attorney French and efforts were made to delay action, apparently until after the coming election. MacFarland, however, persisted in his fight, kept the evidence of crime before the people and forced French to file an action in the name of the Government on May 22.

Delighted With Party Success.

Members of the Independence League in this State are delighted with the success of their party in the Eastern State. The message of congratulation follows:

Mr. Granville S. MacFarland,
Chairman Executive Committee,
Independence League of Massachusetts, Boston.

The Independence League of California sends congratulations to the forces which made the Massachusetts Independence League successful fight made by the party in Massachusetts to secure action to destroy the transportation monopoly in New England.

The Massachusetts League in presenting to the Government evidence that the laws were violated by railroad monopolies gave practical and worthy recognition of the purpose of our great movement to take the machinery of the government out of the hands of such special interests as those the Massachusetts League is fighting.

The Right Kind of Ability.

The persistence of the League and its success in forcing the apparently reluctant authorities to bring proceedings upon the League's evidence is the kind of fighting ability that has brought the people of the United States a realization of the fraudulent force of our movement and its practical value in conserving the people's rights.

Just as our fights as you are making now be fought throughout the nation, because the older political parties have failed to make them, fostering monopoly and corruption rather than denying corrupt and oppressive monopolies.

Congratulations to the Independence League of Massachusetts and to the people of your great Commonwealth.

Signed HIGH J. HAAS,
Chairman Executive Committee,
The Independence League of California.

GETS FATAL WOUND CLEANING REVOLVER

MARLBORO, June 1.—J. Frank Griffin, well-known business man, died at the Marlboro Hospital early to-day from a bullet wound received accidentally while cleaning his revolver in his room at the Manning House, Hudson, Friday afternoon. Mr. Griffin was fifty-one years old and a native of Hudson for the past nine years.

EDISON COMPANY MUST CHARGE UNIFORM RATE

STATE BOARD ORDERS END OF DISCRIMINATION AND 12-CENT MAXIMUM.

The Edison company, which has a monopoly of supplying electricity for illuminating purposes in Boston, must establish a uniform rate for its lighting and other service, not to exceed twelve cents a kilowatt hour, and a year from October 1 next must cut the uniform rate still lower, unless it shall show good reason why it cannot, according to the recommendations made to-day by the Gas and Electric Light Commission.

The board finds that there should be no discrimination in price favoring the city or any other customers in the rates charged for lighting municipal buildings.

The board recommends to the Edison company:

At Twelve Cents an Hour.

"That on and after July 1, 1908, it offer to sell electricity for any use at a uniform price not to exceed twelve cents per kilowatt hour, and that, if a customer elects to be served, under the present schedules, whenever the average price per kilowatt hour charged to him during the year thereunder exceeds such uniform price, his account shall be adjusted so that he shall not pay more than such uniform price."

The Gas Commissioners took this action as the result of the investigation of electric lighting charges petitioned for by the Public Franchise League and after giving ten public hearings. Attorney Joseph B. Eastman appeared for the league and Attorney Everett W. Burdett for the Edison concern. The Gas Commissioners reviewed the evidence and considered the company's rate and announced this conclusion:

"The board is convinced that the present system of rates has operated to select as customers those whom the company deemed desirable and has tended to discourage small users of electricity from becoming customers. To the extent to which this is true the company is disregarding its duties to the public. Furthermore, in the opinion of the board the value of the small user to the company may have been underestimated."

Must Stop Discounts.

"There can be no possible justification for the company to depart from its published schedule of prices or to give any advantage directly or indirectly, to one customer not offered to others enjoying or seeking the company's service under like conditions. The board recommends that the practice be discontinued as inconsistent with the fulfillment of existing contracts which cannot legally be cancelled.

"The municipal schedules, so far as they relate to the lighting of municipal buildings, contain special discounts already described, which are not offered to private customers. The board knows of no logical or consistent basis upon which such special discounts can be defended and recommends their discontinuance."

The board makes no recommendation relative to street lighting rates.

FACTORY GIRL WINS HUSBAND AND RICHES

ALLENTOWN, Pa., June 1.—From a factory girl at $8 a week in the Queen City Silk Company of Allentown, Pa., to the mistress of a $400,000 mansion on Fifth avenue, New York, with an accumulated fortune of $700,000 made by her own efforts, is part of the strange romance of Jennie Clausen.

Within the next twelve months, the chances are that it will be within ninety days, Jennie Clausen will become the bride of one of New York's most prominent men. By a strange coincidence the man who will be the husband of Miss Clausen must remain a secret for a matter of days.

In the meantime, deeds to the Fifth avenue property have been recorded and three other extensive transactions have become a public record.

Those who have witnessed the transactions have been sworn to secrecy for the time being. Indeed, it is said, that even the name of the man who is to wed the factory girl. The name of one of the best known families in the United States has been linked with that of the young woman.

MAURETANIA MAKES A NEW OCEAN RECORD

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 1.—Wireless dispatches received to-day by Vernon H. Brown of the Cunard Line in New York show that the turbiner Mauretania, due early to-morrow, had broken all ocean records for speed, and has broken them, moreover, with only three of her four propellers in operation.

The wireless messages say that the 31½ hours yesterday the Mauretania maintained an average of 27.2 knots an hour, covering 413 knots in that time. This beats everything the Lusitania has done under four propellers.

The first wireless message from the Mauretania was dated 6 a. m. Sunday when she was 482 miles east of Cape Race, about 972 miles east of Sandy Hook. The second message was dated 2 p. m. Sunday and stated that she was then 862 miles east of the hook. The Mauretania did not have time when she was in Liverpool to have her fourth propeller blade repaired and left with only three for service. She disabled the propeller on the trip westward, sailing from here under three propellers.

A New Baby.

A New Baby! What magic, what mystery, what charm these words have for us. Yet, how infinitely more they mean to the mother. A new life; short, to be sure, but full of possibilities. Some one must be patient, hopeful, watchful, proud and never discouraged. That "some one" is the mother. She has heard her baby's first cry, and whether it be her first or tenth, the feeling is the same. Her feeble arms are out-stretched; those arms that will never desert it as long as the mother shall live. And that hand which supports the head of the new-born babe, the mother's hand, supports the civilization of the world.

Is it any wonder, we ask you, mothers, that with all these responsibilities resting upon your all too weak shoulders, we urge upon you the necessity of selecting the babe's medicine with utmost care; the necessity of protecting your babe from worthless, unknown and narcotic drugs as you would protect it from the fire?

WILL 'COURT' AT CHURCH NOW

CHICAGO, June 1.—A "courting room," made attractive with cozy corners, screens, chaperones and soft lights, is the latest thing in the equipment of institutional churches. It will be installed by Christ Church, Presbyterian, according to the pastor, Rev. J. E. Snyder.

"This is a church or young people. It is right that we should make every provision for their needs as far beyond the church should not have to go beyond the church for any necessity, and a place to court is an essential. So why not have one?" asked Rev. Snyder of his congregation.

The Summer Vacation

To Go or Not to Go? That's the Question

By DOROTHY DIX

It is undoubtedly, as I said yesterday, been experienced by almost every married couple, and that is what makes both husband and wife look forward with fond anticipation to the time when the woman says to her husband that she hates to think of going away and leaving him for the Summer, but really the doctor says that she must have a change and that he will not be responsible for the children if she doesn't take them away.

To which the husband gallantly and mendaciously responds that he doesn't know what he'll do without his little wife and his precious children, but of course he is willing to sacrifice himself for the good of his family.

If every woman told the truth she would testify that when she starts off in the Summer on her vacation she thinks of her husband as an ordinary sort of a person, who doesn't shave as often as he ought to, who is sadly lacking in enthusiasm about everything but business, and who had failed to understand her higher nature and know that she is a problem.

By the time she has been away a week she begins to think that her husband is handsome and distinguished looking. In two weeks she is quoting his opinion about everything; in a month she is bragging to other women about what a noble, pathetic, intellectual creature she has married, and by the time she is ready to return home he has become once more the romantic hero of her youthful dreams.

Appreciates His Wife

Nor does the wife, either, suffer by absence. Decency keeps the husband from showing how reconciled he is at his wife's departure, but he doesn't disguise from himself that it's going to be mighty comfortable to be able to come home at an old hour without having to give an account of himself, and be free to eat and drink what he likes without a wife telling him how bad it is for his digestion.

For the first week he goes about feeling like a boy out of school. The absence of nagging and makes a slight or two of it with the old chaffing, and he wakes up a headache and a dark brown taste in his mouth.

Then it begins to dawn on him that marriage is a habit that is hard to break and that domesticity unfits a man for being a rounder, and that when you are used to going to bed at 10 you get sleepy before 3.

A little later on he wearies of the restaurants and begins to yearn for home cooking, and when he has worn out his clean clothes and found that he has forgot to put the soiled ones in the laundry, and doesn't know where the collar buttons are kept, he begins to appreciate the love—funny, but reliable—that took care of all his little ways. And by the time Maria gets back he sees in her once more the guardian angel he wooed and won.

The woman who is nervous and dejected herself, or who is married to a man who is nervous and dejected, should on no account undertake a good, long Summer vacation, and giving one to her husband. That way lies the road to domestic peace and happiness.

If people were only married five days a week instead of seven there would be no more divorces.

Nature's Warning

This is nature's way of telling us that the time has come to part. We are tired of our best beloved, just as our eyes grow tired of looking always at the same picture, no matter what a work of art, or our palate refuses to relish the same food, no matter how delicate and delicious; or we go crazy listening to the same tune, no matter if it be the choicest morceau of Beethoven.

Thus it is that the Summer vacation performs its great and altruistic mission by separating husbands and wives for a brief season, unless they are such foolish people that they stultify themselves by going away together.

Luckily circumstances generally prevent this, and this makes it possible for the man to have his vacation from his wife's boring and the children's noise and having to keep home rules and observe the home time card, even if he stays at home.

Uninterrupted matrimony can become the most intolerable bore on earth, whereas intermittent matrimony is almost invariably ideally happy.

We seldom hear of divorces in naval circles. Sea captains are notoriously esteemed as husbands, and there are no men so devoted to their homes and so petted and coddled as commercial travelers.

This is because absence keeps the halo of romance always about matrimony, and makes the home a haven to strive for to the end of a lull to which a truce is bound to return at night.

The piquant effects of separation have more divorces.

IS MARRIAGE A FAILURE? WELL, HARDLY!

No. 2—The Honeymoon. It Is the Crossroads of Married Life

By NELL BRINKLEY

THE wedding is only a gasping accumble. Billy gallops through it with an ardent prayer that he may make of himself anything but a "fool," with a horrific foreboding at the back of his mind that possible, a nightmare thing happening right out of the sky.

Betty struggles through a turmoil of fabrics—satin-like ivory, and flowery lace, and pearl buttons, and ruffles, and veils of—frantically trying to hope that she may look pretty, and like she has done it times and times before.

And the numerous measures of the organ, and the high silver anthems, and voices, and lying hankies, and the soft roll of a cab, wind it all up gallantly at the end.

That's a desperate time, sure. And maybe one must own up—to the Lady Fate, who make their own cheats of gold, and shake their heads with a flicker of a smile when one wonders if she didn't marry a man; and to the men folk with the thinning hair, and old age creeping on, who smile, too, at the same thing—one might own up.

Have Drawbacks

That little short time that is called the wedding might have been a fine thing in long ago days, when it was but just a Man and the Woman he had desired for his mate, taking each a hand of the other, and making their binding vows to one of God's priests, even as they do now, and going out into the sunshine again.

It was simple, then, and it only took one little minute; but now it takes many, many days. Augustewer, and it is a horrible-like thing with clutches of complications and frou frous.

We'll skip the wedding, because it doesn't help me much to prove my case hardly; it only serves to get over the side of the folks who wag their heads and smile and sneer, and say, "Just wait and see."

But the Honeymoon. That's a double of the time of Romance—the periodical—save only that it has thoughts and things big—and that one cannot feel behind it. Its meanings, that may play on and change a whole life.

This is the real, true beginning of the living together of two lives that have held aloof, with their own great opinions, and ways, and thoughts, and ideals different from the outlooks, and ways, and thoughts, and ideals of any other one in the world.

Signboard Is Up

The living together of them just as if they were one—and they are one—and that means a little making over of both one and the other, so that each might grow indebted to the full blend that was unchanged in the other.

No one can see this in the crossroads, with a bubble signboard tacked on. And one can't guess wide, down the middle, and it's a safe road, even if there are troubles bumping up on it every little while. And two other roads spring away from either side, and they are narrow, just wide enough for one—and pretty bumpy with lonely spots, and dark at the end, where old age sits with his chin in his hand.

And the honeymoon means either one for each, or both for the one. But I played out saying one word, and won't even tell that these two loved each other well, and for that kind the road down the middle is the one they take.

Billy stops aghast for a long minute when he first sees that Betty's petulant, baby way, which was one of the things that won his heart away, can run on into a furious little temper, with a pout at the end, and some other little faults, likewise. And Betty cries in all the coy corner of her heart when Billy shows that he can go to sleep at the most wonderful times, and goes chopping through a whole dinner without saying one word, and won't even tell about it.

And then these two turn them gallantly about, and remember that they made love through all things, and that they are just the same as they were before bothered with the heart away, can run on into the end, and some other little faults, likewise. And Betty cries in all the coy corner of her heart when Billy shows that he can go to sleep at the most wonderful times, and goes chopping through a whole dinner without saying one word, and won't even tell about it.

Mothers of Great Men

The Mother of Aaron Burr and Her Early Death

By REV. THOS. B. GREGORY

HIGH up in the list of the names of the world's great men belongs that of Aaron Burr.

Of intellectual brilliancy and vigor, in the charm of personality, in the power of impressing men and keeping them impressed, and, above all else, in the sublime quality of self-reliance and unconquerable courage, the third Vice-President of the United States has had few to be his equal in the history of mankind.

Small of stature, being scarcely five and a half feet in height and exceedingly slight of frame, the little man had the soul of a Titan and the soul-courage which defied the word that Fate could threaten.

By sheer brain-power and resolution of will this little man, in four years, lifted himself from private life to a seat in the United States Senate. And this when he was less than thirty-six years old, and in opposition to the combined influence of all the "reigning families" of the Empire State.

Nine years later he was Vice-President of the United States, and could easily have been President had he been willing to intrigue with the Federalists and thus subvert the popular will. This he would not do, and the great prize passed away from him forever.

Unparalleled Courage

Damned by the killing of Hamilton, it only remains to say that if ever a man was justified in challenging another to a duel Burr was justified in challenging Hamilton. He had been sorely tried—tried as but few men have ever been tried in this world, and the "code" being then in vogue, he availed himself of an opportunity of "settling" the difficulty. That was all.

But see the man after the world had cast him out! See his marvelous power of self-reliance—his Manfred-like courage of soul!

Not one minute did he waver. Facing the world, he gritted his teeth, threw back his shoulders back and bid it a proud defiance.

Nerves? He had never known them. His nerves did not know how to twitch. Confronted by more sudden dangers and by a greater number of immediate catastrophes than any other man known to American history, Burr never for a moment lost his self-possession.

Then he fired mutinied regiments, ambushed enemies, outraged antagonists, duelled combatantly, a slandering public and an enraged nation.

Determining to take his wife, to return to his native land, at the age of fifty-six he landed in New York. A little fix-sign bearing the legend, "Aaron Burr, Attorney and Counsellor at Law," was tacked over a door on Nassau street, and the following card was published in the city papers:

"Aaron Burr has returned to the city and has resumed the practice of law."

Of Wonderful Popularity

His old popularity seemed at once to return—the popularity of the wonderful man, "who had never lost a case."

The day that his presence was made known he received over 500 clients. Before two weeks passed he had received over 1,000 retainers.

If Burr had not been one of the greatest of men he could not have done that.

In the realm of morals, Burr was a free lance. A politician, at a time when politics were at their lowest ebb, he fought his adversaries with their own weapon, and, under the black flag, expecting "no quarter," gained none.

He was no hypocrite, and no worse, than the average politician of his day, and when history gets itself written as it ought to be written we shall undoubtedly be able to look upon the third Vice-President in a more favorable light.

Burr's mother, Esther Edwards, was the daughter of the famous Jonathan Edwards, founder of Congregationalism in America, and one of the most profound intellects of all time.

The daughter is said to have inherited much of her father's mental power, and along with it that stanch regard for virtue and piety.

She appeared to have been in every sense a model woman, stately in appearance, of brilliant mind, exceedingly sensitive in spirit, kindly of heart, an ideal wife and mother.

Left Motherless

But unfortunately for her son, she died when he was less than three years of age, leaving him without the guidance which was so greatly needed by him.

Had his mother lived, Esther Edwards Burr, while her wonderful child was still growing at her knee, was well equipped, mentally, morally and socially, must, of necessity, have exerted upon the boy a telling influence.

With his naturally noble nature, ripe with his quick perception of things, it is morally certain that Burr could not have grown up to be anything of so remarkable a woman without profiting by it.

But it was not to be. Esther Edwards Burr, while her wonderful child was still petting at her knee, was called away, and the little fellow had to do the best he could in an evil world, with no loving mother to guide and counsel him.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

SAY YOU ARE SORRY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have known a gentleman for about a year. Recently we quarrelled, for which I really am to blame. I meet this man almost every day, and I know he would like to speak to me; that is, if I speke to him first. As for me, I very much desire to speak to him, providing he speaks first to me. I do not care to speak to him merely because he is good looking, but he is such a nice man, a brilliant conversationalist and, more than that, his manners are unexcelled. Now, dear friend, what shall I do—speak to him, or wait?

ROSE.

My dear, if you really care for him and you were to blame in the quarrel, do not be foolish, but tell him that you are sorry. Life is too short to spoil it by quarrels with the person you love.

ALL HE COULD DO

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I had a disagreement with a girl whom I love. I have written her and asked her forgiveness, but she does not letter up. I am deeply in love with this girl, and, as somewhere in the coming fall I would like to be on friendly terms with her. I have not called on her although a personal friend of mine, but she only told him I was not home. Before we disagreed this girl told me she loved me. Will you please tell me what to do, as I love this girl dearly and would like to be on friendly terms with her.

A. G.

I THINK that if you offered a full apology you did all that was necessary. However, if you love the girl well enough to sacrifice your pride, you might write her once more.

MUST NOT TELL HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl, and have known a young man for about two years. He calls on me once in a while and has taken me out several times to places of entertainment. I love him dearly, but he has never spoken to me of marriage nor did he tell me of his love.

His friends tell me that he loves me and thinks much of me. Yet I have been him out with other girls. Please tell me what to do. Shall I tell him of my love or not, and how? I wish to tell you that my parents are against it, for he has not much ambition, while I am educated, and they tell me that I have opportunity coming.

PERPLEXED

NO, my dear girl, you must not tell him of your love. It is the man's place to tell the girl of his love. He probably likes you very much and some day he may love you, but he would think you very forward were you to tell him that you were in love with him. Pay no attention to the people who tell you that he loves you. The man himself is the only one to listen to in that respect.

ON THE OUTSIDE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

J. says that when a gentleman is walking with two ladies, he should take the outside of the walk. M. says that he should walk between the two ladies.

Which is correct?

RIGHT.

J. is in the right. The man should walk on the outside.

THE ONLY THING TO DO

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen years of age and for the last four years have been going with a young man two years my senior. We were engaged to be married, but at a party given a few months ago I had a little trouble with the engagement was broken off. Now this fellow goes with another girl, but still he comes to my parents' home. Sometimes I have asked him to stay away, but he refused. Even when he comes to the house I try to elude him as much as possible. Am I doing right? I do not care for this young man, but merely went with him for fun.

MADGE.

I THINK you are doing the only proper thing in avoiding him as much as possible. Your parents should intimate to him that he is not welcome. He is no lover, or he would not insist on intruding.

The Joy of Mirthfulness

Peter Dailey's Life Holds a Lesson for All

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WITHIN the last week a vaudeville comedian has gone to his long rest.

From end to end of the country Peter Dailey's name was connected with mirthfulness. His fellow players loved him and his public loved him; and the reason was that he always brought a smile to the lips.

His fun was clean, wholesome and kindly.

It is a great thing to go through life carrying pleasure in your train. Wherever Peter Dailey's name is mentioned people will harken the pleasant consciousness that at one time he brought mirth into their lives.

Life is short, and there are many unavoidable sorrows in it. But for that very reason it is important to get all possible joy out of it.

Preach Cheerfulness

Try your best to live and preach the creed of cheerfulness.

You have all met the doleful person who invariably leaves you feeling less happy than when you met him. Remorsey you think of him it brings a little shadow to your soul.

Don't you think it is better to shed sunshine about you than shadows? Even if you feel a little bit sad yourself, is that any reason why you should cast gloom on some one else?

Thank goodness there are few people who really enjoy being doleful. Most of us love to laugh and be merry.

One bright, cheerful spirit among a number of workers will leaven the group; but it is not fair that one person should carry the whole load of cheerfulness.

It is selfishness, pure and simple, that leads people to be grumpy and morose. They must have a regard of that sort, you are thinking entirely of yourself, and not of others.

Forget Grouches

Perhaps you think that you have the right to be as doleful as you choose, but you have not. No one has the right to allow the blues on his friends in any other than a cheerful way.

If you want to be surly or disagreeable in any way, you should go off by yourself until your evil mood has passed.

If anything were to happen to you tomorrow, wouldn't you prefer that your memory were pleasantly thought of?

Meet life bravely and tolerantly, as man and woman should. Laugh as much as you can. The sorrows won't need to be sought out.

Make yourself so desirable that people will seek your society and that when your name is mentioned a kindly glow will come to the heart of whoever hears it.

It's a great thing to have it said of you: "That man brought cheerfulness to many a heart."

Expert Advice on Beauty

FALLING HAIR

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Will you please tell me something to do for my hair, as it comes out very bad when I comb it? I have been suffering with neuralgia lately. Do you think this has anything to do with it?

GABRIELLE.

IT is highly probable that the same cause which produces the neuralgia causes the hair to fall out. When your nerves have been put in proper shape the hair will likely stop falling. In the meantime open it up as much as possible to the sun and massage the scalp every night with a few drops of red vaseline, applying two or three times a week a tonic made by mixing three drams each of tincture of cantharides and tincture of capsicum, with one and a half ounce of bay rum, and alcohol enough to make in all nine ounces of the mixture. Add one dram of oil of lavender to perfume it and apply by massage.

CUCUMBER LOTION

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Will you give me a recipe for a good cucumber lotion, one that will help several pimples and scars, and, if possible, one that will help to clear them.

A. READER.

THE following is a good cucumber lotion, but no lotion will conceal pimples. Half a pint of cucumber juice, one and a half ounces of sweet almond oil, one dram of shaving cream and one and three-quarters drams of diamond almonds.

KITCHEN curtains of dotted Swiss are very effective. They need to be washed, rinsed, wrung out and run on the rods before drying. Put the rods up, arrange the curtains in even gathers and stretch straight and let them dry. They dry with the dotted uniformly having perfectly straight borders, saving starching, drying, ironing and all.

Make a good lather with soap and warm water, adding one-fourth of a teaspoonful of pearline to each quart of water, if you like. Place the articles in the glass fruit jar, then pour all the jar with lather. Seal tightly, shake the jar a little and place it in bright sunlight for a few hours. Everything will be clean and sweet. After the sun may penetrate every part, and the suds pour off clear, free the fabric gently, then rinse several times in clear, soft water. Dry in the sun and iron while damp.

To remove fruit stains from white goods, stretch the stained part over a bowl and pour on boiling water from a height of several inches. Repeat if necessary.

Fillet net is now embroidered and can be bought in strips or in dress width. The conventional designs used on filet net, are made by means of the darning stitch. This is done on the filet net has a square mesh and the spaces can be counted, making conventional designs used on filet net, ring on canvas. For one of the new frocks for small women, beautiful bands of filet net embroidered with dull green, blue and gold may be used for trimming the bloomer. Embroidered filet is a favorite trimming for the new Summer frocks of silk, grenadines and net.

MRS. PRINCE LOSES $5,000 SUIT FOR KISS

Dr. Temple of Lowell Exonerated by Jury in Action of Mrs. Prince.

WARMLY CONGRATULATED

Special to the Boston American.

LOWELL, June 1—Mrs. Nellie S. Prince loses the $5,000 damage suit she brought against Dr. F. S. Temple, in which she charged that he had kissed her against her will while he was examining her for heart trouble.

The jury in the case, which went out at 11 a. m. Friday and was still in session when court adjourned Friday afternoon, returned a sealed verdict to Judge King at 10 a. m. today in favor of Dr. Temple.

The doctor was immediately surrounded by friends when the verdict was read, and was heartily congratulated. Mrs. Prince, who was also in court, appeared quite calm at the adverse decision.

Mrs. Prince charged that when she was alone with Dr. Temple in his private office on December 14, 1907, and while the doctor was testing her heart action, he suddenly imprinted an unexpected and totally unwarranted kiss on her pretty red lips.

Dr. Temple entered a general denial to the whole charge. The case came to trial last Thursday, and taking of evidence consumed that day and Friday morning. In his charge to the jury Judge King called attention to the risk that doctors run of such suits and to the desirability of the profession being adequately protected in law against being wrongfully sued. The jury was out five hours considering the case before it found the verdict returned today.

GAVE OFFICERS STIFF BATTLE

Three well-dressed men arrested at the Crescent Beach station, Revere, last night, after a terrific battle between Inspectors Shaughnessey and Flinn of the Metropolitan Park Police and five men of a gang whom they were shadowing as pickpockets were brought to Boston Police Headquarters today to see if their faces appeared in the rogues' gallery. The inspectors saw five men jostling the train crowd, and darting their hands into men's pockets. Into the throng plunged the plain clothes men, and with a quick tussle they had three of the gang handcuffed, two of them escaping.

Not knowing that Shaughnessey and Flinn were officers men in the crowd attacked them as they saw the fight between the prisoners and the police. But the inspectors flashed their badges and then the alleged pickpockets came in for a pummeling by the angry crowd before they could be taken out. They are booked at the Revere station as suspicious characters.

The prisoners gave their names as Harry Davis, nineteen, a bellboy from Chicago; John M. Boyle, twenty-one, a news agent, Butte, Mont., and Charles Walter, painter, maker, No. 249 Warren st.

BAKERS BID THEIR CHIEF BON VOYAGE

The heads of departments of the George G. Fox Baking Company of Charlestown and the members of the Bridge G. Fox Mutual Aid Association tendered a banquet at the American House to Treasurer Frank R. Sheperd on the evening of Memorial Day. Mr. Sheperd starts with his wife and two children for a trip to Europe on Wednesday on the White Star liner Republic. Speeches were made, and Mr. Sheperd responded.

2 KILLED, 2 FATALLY HURT IN AUTO WRECK

NEW YORK, June 1.—Two men were killed instantly and two others mortally hurt when a racing automobile speeding in from Coney Island smashed against a tree in Ocean Parkway near Prospect avenue at 5 o'clock this morning, leaped into the air and fell, burying the six men in the car under its weight.

The dead are:

William P. Goubeaud, forty-two, of No. 1,477 Pacific street, Brooklyn.

Thomas Noland, forty-five, of No. 242 New York avenue, Brooklyn.

The injured:

Victor Brandes, forty-five, of No. 1,742 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn; right arm and left thigh broken and internal injuries.

James McKenna, forty-three, of No. 58 Brooklyn avenue; left shoulder broken and possible internal injuries.

In the automobile with Lanjon, besides the two men killed and the two injured, was Ernest Eggert, forty-six, of No. 1,523 Pacific street.

Lanjon and his five friends had spent the greater part of the night at Coney Island, when they started back to their homes. Lanjon was making his machine go at top speed. While whirling along at a terrific pace, at Prospect avenue Lanjon turned the machine suddenly. Instantly the steering gear seemed to get out of order, and the car swerved. One of the front wheels struck a tree, and an instant later the six men were buried under the car.

Goubeaud and Noland are believed to have been killed instantly.

Brandes and McKenna were unconscious when found. Lanjon and Eggert were both stunned and for a time all lay pinned down by the heavy car. When Lanjon and Eggert, who had been riding on the front seat, regained their reason, they began to call for help.

A passing automobilist heard their cries and summoned the police. Doctors Gilbert and Mitchell hurried Brandes and McKenna to the Kings County Hospital. Lanjon was arrested on a technical charge of homicide and taken to the Parkville police station.

OLDFIELD AUTO CRASH VICTIMS ARE RECOVERING

LOWELL, June 1.—Favorable reports were given out at the Lowell (Vetrl Hospital today concerning both victims of Barney Oldfield's first real accident. Mrs. Oldfield is resting comfortably, and no serious results are expected from the slight injury to her spine. Her other injury was a cut in the eye.

Joseph O'Brien of Boston, whose ankle was broken, was told this morning that amputation would be necessary. The other occupants of the car, Oldfield, Robert Allen, the Hartford, Conn., motorcar, and Joseph Park of Andover were practically uninjured.

The accident occurred last night as Oldfield was bringing the car back from the Country Club to Andover, where he and his wife were the guests of Dr. Park. The 60 horsepower racer did not strike a tree, as one report had it, but according to Oldfield, a tree loomed up suddenly in the middle of the road in making a quick turn to avoid it, the machine skidded, a tire burst and the car turned over. With characteristic coolness Oldfield got onto the steering wheel until the upset buried him to the ground.

MAYOR DENIES FINANCE PLAN

Prompt denial that he has in mind any scheme of frenzied financering as contributed to him of taking part of $940,000 appropriation for the paving don of the street department and using it in new street construction was issued Mayor Hibbard upon his arrival at City Hall today.

"A very ingenious plan, but unfortunate without a word of truth, said the Mayor. "I never have even thought of such a scheme."

"Two things stand in the way of the scheme carrying out, any such scheme. The first and most important is that the law posies that the money for the laying out of new streets shall be raised by loans, and the second that with the present appropriation of $840,000 for maintenance Superintendent Emerson is on record as saying that he cannot retain his present force through the Summer.

BOSTON NEARLY RAMMED GREER

The fishing schooner Mary D. Greer, which arrived at T wharf today, had a most narrow escape off Cashe's Bank from being run down by the Dominion Atlantic liner Boston, which sank the schooner Fame in the same waters last Tuesday night and drowned seventeen men.

The Greer was grabed by the Boston two hours before the disaster to the Fame.

Captain Matthew Greer said today:

"We were under sail off Cashe's Bank. The fog hung heavier than I ever saw in twenty five years' fishing. We heard a steamer's foghorn, but could not tell from which direction. I had all the men on deck and ordered the gripes cast out from the dories, so that we could get the boats clear. After a moment of anxious watching we spied the nose of a big steamer looming up not fifty feet off our port quarter and headed straight toward us. It was the Boston. Only the fact that we had good sea room and that both vessels answered the helm promptly saved us from being struck. As it was, she grazed us in passing. Two hours afterwards she sent seventeen men to death on the Fame."

SAYS SHYLOCK WAS NOT A JEW

Declaring that Shylock was not a Jew, that caricatures of the Jew should be driven from the stage and that the United States should erect a monument in honor of Hiam Solomon for loaning the United Colonies $600,000, Rabbi Joseph Silverman last night addressed a mass meeting of Hebrews under the auspices of District Grand Lodge No. 1, Independent Order of B'Nai Birth at Temple Ohabei Shalom. He declared that the order stands for the Jew of today. He said:

"An Orthodox Jew could not be a Jew and entertain crime in his mind. When he commits crime or even entertains it he ceases to be a Jew."

A bureau of defence for the fair name of the Jew should be organized."

Among the speakers at the mass meeting were Adolph Kraus, president of the order, of Chicago; the Hon. Simon Wolf of Washington, former United States consul to Egypt; Rabbi E. N. Calisch of Richmond and Jacob Furth of St. Louis.

Harry Cutler, first vice-president of No. 1, presided.

TRAIN KILLS BOY ON BRIDGE

Overtaken by a train, while crossing the bridge between Wood Island Park and the first section district of East Boston on the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad yesterday, Barnet Orensky, aged twelve, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Orensky of No. 1 Decatur street, South End, crouched down between the ties until he thought the entire train had passed, then lifted his head and was struck and killed by the step of a car. His neck was broken. The bridge, were the boy was killed is known as "dizzy" bridge. A number of accidents have happened there.

ARCHBISHOP AT CORNERSTONE CEREMONIES

The cornerstone of the new $100,000 church of St. Catherine's parish, on the top of Spring Hill, Somerville, was laid by Archbishop William H. O'Connell, who was assisted in the ceremony by a number of leading church, State and city dignitaries.

More than 2,000 were present at the ceremonies, which opened with a procession of the church choir and about fifty altar boys who marched from the church to the new edifice. A few minutes later the clergymen who were to participate in the exercises followed.

Rev. Arthur P. Connolly, pastor of the church of the Blessed Sacrament, Jamaica Plain, delivered an eloquent sermon after which the Archbishop blessed the cornerstone.

Rev. Fr. James O'Brien, pastor of the church, Rev. Ambrose A. Dore and Rev. P. J. Lanneban, curates of the church, and the Rev. Charles Glennon carried the cornerstone, which was dropped into position by the Archbishop after solemn ceremonies.

TWICE SAVE WOMAN FROM DEATH PERIL

After having been rescued from the water in Dorchester Bay yesterday by rangers, Mrs. Annie Daley, wife of William Daley, No. 16 Locust street, Dorchester, has been taken to the House of Detention to await an examination as to her mental condition. Mrs. Daley left her home early yesterday morning and was seen on the New Haven Railroad tracks. Before anyone could get to her she had thrown Mile road toward the Cow Pasture Pumping Station. As she was waving out toward the channel from Carson's Beach she was seen by several young men, who plunged in and brought her back. They started her on the way home when Mrs. Daley said she was all right.

Patrolman Quirk of the Dorchester station later found her on the railroad tracks and took her to the station. Mrs. Daley complained of violent pains in the head. Her father died recently and Mrs. Daley appeared to be in low spirits after a visit to the grave on Saturday. She has three children.

Naphtha Loosens The Dirt.

Soap and water remove it. That is the way P. & G. Naphtha Soap does its work.

The naphtha, by loosening the dirt, makes it easy for the soap to do the work it is intended to do.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap would clean just as thoroughly as it does, if it contained no naphtha at all; but it would take more time and more work.

Naphtha and good soap make an ideal combination—a combination that does away with half the work and practically all the discomfort of wash day; and makes it possible for a woman to do as much work in 4 or 5 hours as now takes twice that long.

Boiling the clothes, with all its attendant annovances, is a thing of the past with women who use P. & G. Naphtha Soap. So is three-fourths of the hard work over the wash-board.

President John I. Taylor of the Boston American team received a wire from the management of the Cleveland team to-day, requesting one of his surplus outfielders, as the Naps were in a bad plight over injuries to their star meadow chasers, and wanted the Hub magnate to come to their rescue in retifical ways.

No particular player was named, and Mr. Taylor shot back, asking what kind of a proposition they wanted to make; whether the Naps wanted to swap or wanted to buy. No reply has yet been received.

TOO MUCH FIRE WATER RUINED SOCKALEXIS

"In memory of my days in Cleveland stands out more vividly than does the recollection of the coming and going of Louis Sockalexis," says Patsy Tebeau, formerly manager of the Cleveland Club, recently. "No player, to my knowledge, ever sacrificed as much on the altar of his appetite as did the redman.

"We signed Sox for $1,500 a year, and raised him to $2,400 after the initial season. When he began to drink and stay out all night, finding first one and then another useless, I promised him $6,000 the next year and $10,000 the season following if he would stay sober and play ball. He promised all right, but he simply couldn't let the strong stuff alone.

"The season he joined us he celebrated the Fourth of July, which came on Sunday, by carousal, during which he bumped out of a second story window of some redlight place.

"His right foot was badly broken by the fall, but he bandaged it up and went with the other players to Pittsburg that night. I went over the next day, hurried out to Exposition Park, and there in the box was Sox, his broken foot swollen to four or five times its natural size.

"I sent him back to his hotel in Cleveland, and a doctor was put in charge of him, with instructions that under no circumstances was he to leave the hotel. But do you know that the old fox would sneak out during the night and walk a block on his plaster-bound foot to get a drink of whisky? Even at the hospital, where he was sent later, he managed to get his booze by the court every day.

"Poor old Sox! It's tough to think of him dying in poverty when he might have made $10,000 or $12,000 a year on the ball field. He was not only worth that as an attraction—nobody ever heard of Cy Young, Kid Childs, Bobby Wallace or any of us while he was with Cleveland—he was worth it for his playing ability alone."

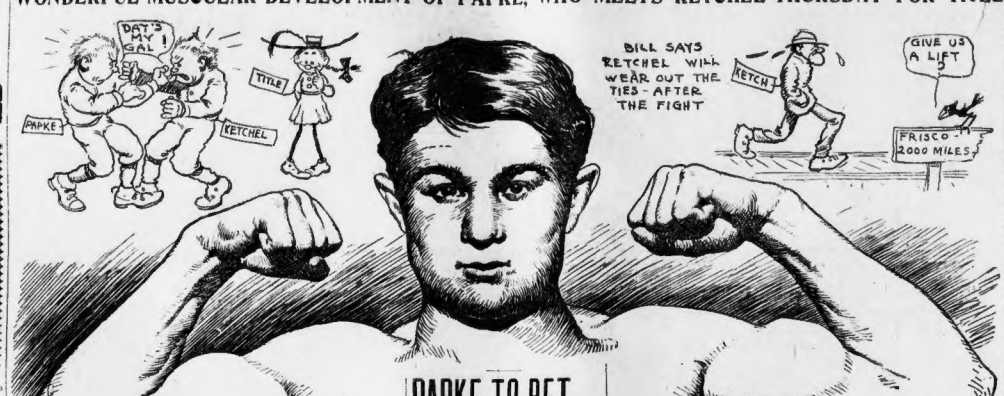
BANK JOKE BRAND ALES

WONDERFUL MUSCULAR DEVELOPMENT OF PAPKE, WHO MEETS KETCHEL THURSDAY FOR TITLE



PAPKE TO BET BANK ROLL HE WINS FIGHT

WILL JOE GANS EVER MEET HIS MASTER?

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—Will Joe Gans ever meet his master in the prize ring, or will he just stiffen and shrivel up and become such a useless piece of pugilistic junk that the promoters will not be able to use him?

The Gans case is puzzling a good many of the thoroughfully inclined, and no wonder. The sober-faced negro fighter promises to emulate the brook of poetic fancy, and go on forever.

Just think of the generations of lightweights that Gans has seen come and go. Where are the cracks of the days that were his rivals in his best days?

Some of them have passed on for out of the game that it is to wonder what they would look like if they were asked to throw themselves in ring attire and step into a fighting enclosure.

Take George Dixon, McFadden, for instance. He was one of the greatest scrambling bloody little pests, that ever fought and fought and fought again, and in all probability if McFadden, like Gans, had been of the lasting kind, the desire to see them have just one more tussle would still exist.

But what a Rip Van Winkle McFadden would appear if unearthed and brought to the front now.

Frank Erne, too. Where is he? And the mention of Frank Erne reminds me that he is the particular subject on the pugilistic highway that shows how far Gans has traveled.

When Gans had earned his spurs Frank Erne, the newest cult among light-weights was practically unknown. Erne developed and became a rival of Gans. One fight they had is still talked off, so bitter was the struggle.

In the long run Gans triumphed and Erne just waxed and waned, as it were, in one of time Erne fought one of the Jimmy Britt in this city and was disheartened quickly and disgusted. The members of the old guard of sportdom, remembering Erne's quality in former years, felt pity for him.

"A wreck," murmured the sports.

"That's just what I am," assented Erne.

And Jimmy Britt? Well, it's a shame to recall what Gans did to him, but it is not exactly the plan of the story in hand.

Here it is. Erne came up and passed away as a fighter during Gans's days of usefulness. Jimmy Britt, the novice, who took Has-Been Erne's measure, strutted his brief spell on the pugilistic stage. A few weeks ago, after being signally beaten by Packy MacFarland, Britt said, "I'm all in. I've fought my last battle."

Here we have at least two generations of lightweights that have passed, not since Gans began fighting, but since Gans reached the championship goal. Doesn't that suggest that Joe is a marvel of longevity and endurance?

And now we are all saying that the only man likely to make Gans extend himself is Packy MacFarland, the very latest thing in championship candidates, and a lad who was a puzzling infant in long robes when Gans was fighting, stripped to the buff, in the prize rings of the Atlantic States.

Gans admits that he has been boxing fourteen years. How much longer he will be at it he doesn't know.

He says there isn't a thing in connection with his feelings to suggest that he isn't the same speedy, fighting machine and strength he enjoyed a dozen years ago.

What stands to Gans is his temperament. In action he is an unruffled and unemotional as a stone statue. He makes it a careful study of every new subject he has to handle and draws on his vast experience for the necessary tactics to suit the case.

McGUIGAN MAY REFEREE BOUT AT MILWAUKEE

MILWAUKEE, June 1.—It now appears that McGuigan, the Philadelphia fight promoter, would be the third man in the ring when Ketchel and Papke meet here Thursday.

This is the only detail of the preliminaries to be settled.

The managers of Ketchel have agreed to give McGuigan the referee job, and all that is waiting now is the consent of the referee. The managers at first agreed on Malachy Hogan, and then at Fitzgerald, but neither could be got to go on, being a member of the club promoting the battle. McGuigan, however, will solve the puzzle.

Foxboro A. A., Grange Hall, Foxboro, bouts and vaudeville.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Billy Papke, the "Illinois Thunderbolt," is tickled to death that sporting men have made him the choice in his fight Thursday at Milwaukee with Stanley Ketchel. Papke will, he says, put every ounce of his weight on the bouts, the longer the odds the better pleased he will be.

There is every indication that the battle in Milwaukee Thursday will be the best thing pugilistic seen in a ring and, that has ever been pulled off in that city, while it is only of ten rounds' duration, a statement given out by the fight fans, has trimmed the Sullivan twin out West in that line by a mile, and he is ready, and he has never trained before. His ambition is to put Ketchel away in the battle, and his chances for doing so look rather rosy at this stage of the game.

Ketchel is heart and soul in his match, and there is no doubt but that an earnest application from his work now.

Joe O'Connor, the manager, a clean-cut fellow, and every inch a sportsman, is confident that his man will defeat the Kentucky lad and will be there with the bankroll when the men enter the ring. O'Connor is one of the best managers of fighters, who does not want to hog everything. He is a thoroughly shooting fight manager, and there are no tricks in the game that he does not know.

Papke is not lying idle, overlooking his training, while Ketchel is doing his preparatory work. The Illinois lad is at Silver Lake working like a beaver. Papke realizes that in facing Ketchel he meets a man who is really a dangerous contender and one who will give him the fight of his life, and he is leaving nothing undone toward fitting himself for the battle. Like his opponent, he is working as he has never done before.

Ketchel is also at Silver Lake, very smoothing and bear out the story that the fight will be the hardest yet seen in a prize ring. His manager declares Billy is showing marked improvement. Jones says that Papke works better, faster and with more vim now than when he last fought Kelly, and says his cleverness and strength have increased wonderfully.

Papke Shows Improvement.

"Papke takes to his work for this fight in great style and he shows 25 per cent. improvement," said Jones in a letter to the sporting editor of the BOSTON AMERICAN. "A large number of fight fans visited the camp yesterday and watched Billy train, and they all agreed with me that the boy has improved wonderfully. We realize that in Ketchel we have a tough boy to beat, but there is plenty money around that can be had on Papke.

"Papke will either be middleweight champion, with a big bank roll, or nothing with his empty pocketbook. We'll bet our last dollar."

There is only one thing that may stir up a little trouble between now and the time the men enter the ring, and that is the selection of a referee.

There is a dissatisfaction between the managers of both fighters, and before the matching is finally done will be plenty of wrangling. Malachy Hogan, Doc Kreuz, Eddie Smith, Jeffries and Jimmy Dunn, referee of Milwaukee have been some of the names mentioned. The third man, O'Connor seems satisfied to take either Hogan or Kreuz, and Jones has an objection. It seems that with four men to pick from it should not be hard to pick a referee, yet there will be plenty of trouble when the men meet again to decide the matter.

Big Interest in Go.

Interest in the mill is running high and one of the largest crowds that ever invaded Milwaukee will be on hand the night of the battle. Doc Kreuz, who, in his professibility, run the fight train to the ringside.

Matthew Adams, one of the club, yesterday announced his card of preliminary bouts. In the semi-windup Eddie Tancel, the Chicago Bohemian, will be pitted against Jack Root, the Milwaukeean, in an eight-round bout. Monte Dale of St. Paul and Jack Redmond will battle ten up for a six-round contest, as also will Frankie Andrews, the Milwaukee ex-amateur champion, and Marty Kane.

M'CONNELL AND LORD IN BAT BATTLE

Lord and McConnell are having a good race for the batting honors of the Red Sox. The former has a mark of .305 and the latter .316. The Boston Nationals didn't play Saturday. The averages:

DORCHESTER TO MEET ENGLISH

What promises to be the greatest diamond battle ever waged between school teams is carded for Saturday at the Dunbar Avenue Grounds when English High and Dorchester High meet for the decisive game in the Interscholastic League series. The rivalry between the teams that has attempt to name a favorite would be largely a matter of guesswork, for on the field gathered from their work against Somerville and Rindge the teams that be returned a winner.

The two pitchers opposable men to fill the umpires' position is the most important matter to be settled by the teams.

The game will bring together the leading pitchers of the season when Chet Spaulding of Dorchester and Paul Everett of English High toe the slab.

HORSEMEN TO HAVE PARADE

The Dorchester Driving Club now has well under-way extensive preparations for the Speedway carnivals to be held in Dorchester next Saturday afternoon on the occasion of the event of the celebration of the Dorchester Day. The committee in charge of the event has chosen Randolph R. Carter, the veteran horseman, chairman, and former President S. Walter Wales has been selected as chief marshal, with Vice-President Edgar O. Haddock as assistant marshal.

The parade will be formed on the Frank Hi Field Speedway and is scheduled to start at 2 o'clock sharp. The route will be along Talbot avenue, to Washington street, to Grove Hall, to Blue Hill avenue, to Talbot avenue, to the Speedway, where the procession will be reviewed.

The procession will be headed by a detail of mounted policemen, followed by a band. There will be several divisions including one for the club's race horses. The entries are not to be limited to the club members. All horsemen are invited to participate. Souvenir ribbons will be given each entry.

One of the principal races scheduled right after the parade is a fast pace between B. Wilson of the Y. M. C. A. and Craigie (2:13¾). The Mayor and several city officials will be present.

K. OF P. CUPS FOR RACING

With the active members of the Gentlemen Driving Club taking an extremely working to have their coming matinee social on Readville the best since the inception of the organization, the offer of the K. of P. in donating elegant trophies for a series of sprints on their field day, June 24, fits in the correct notch.

In the plan of the race committee of the driving club to hold the opening matinee some day in the week of June 17 in order to secure a line on the ability of the horses. There will only be a heat, however, for the grand affair on K. of P. day, and all of the available horses possible will be secured in this matinee, which promises to be one of the best events of the whole year at Readville, outside of the Grand Circuit meeting.

NEW MANAGER FOR PACKY

CHICAGO, May 28.—After a period of idleness during which time he has learned that every good baseball team needs a captain, Packy McFarland yesterday contracted with Nick Young to look after his business in the future. Lewis is one of the best known sporting men in the West, and it has often been said of them that there are no cheaper plans of bosses in the country. McFarland did well under the clever and capable management of Billy Gilmore, Jr., with whom he recently separated. He was a mark when shifting for himself, and now that he has hooked up with Lewis prosperity will doubtless return.

GIANTS BEAT WATERBURY.

WATERBURY, Ct., June 1.—The New York Nationals defeated the local team of the Connecticut League in an exhibition contest here yesterday, 6 to 5.

FOXBORO A. A. TO HOLD BOUTS

The Foxboro A. A. has arranged to hold an entertainment at Grange Hall, Foxboro, Saturday night in aid of St. Mary's Catholic church that is certain to be interesting. The program includes numbers that will please the people, one of the most enjoyable that the residents of that town have had for a long time. There will be several vaudeville acts, in which some of the leading men in that class will appear. There will also be a number of boxing bouts between local boxers who can give a good display of sparring.

GLIDDEN BACK HOME.

Charles J. Glidden, automobilist and balloonist, returned to this city yesterday after an extensive foreign motor trip. Accompanied by Mrs. Glidden, he toured Egypt, Syria, Greece, Italy and France. He has motored 40,000 miles already and intends to complete 50,000 miles next Fall when he will take a trip through Algeria, Tunis, Tripoli, Norway, Russia and Siberia.

OVER SEVENTY HORSES NAMED IN METS RACE

With over seventy horses entered in nineteen races the past week's vacation evident, did the members of the Metropolitan Driving Club no very particular harm, as this is the biggest number of entries and races the race committee of the club public for decision to-morrow over the Charles River Speedway that has been had this season.

There will be unusual interest taken in the battle between the champion trotter of the course, Chase, 2.07¼, and the pacing gelding Mr. Star, 2.03¾, and the result will be impossible to foretell till the final heat will have been concluded.

A new-comer to the races is the peer Czarina, 2.12¾, the race champion of the Franklin Field Speedway, and holder of the matinee records at both South Weymouth of the Old County Driving Club and at Brockton of the Brockton Driving Club. This mare has been sweeping all before her this year at the places named, which will make her debut against Chapman, Edith J. and Major P., at Charles River Speedway to-morrow of exceptional importance to local horse-men. Following is a complete list of the horses entered in the matinee:

Class A, Pacing—Brown Bess, Elmwood, Lerry, Nancy Grayson, Miss Woodward.
Class B, Trotting—Eugene, Berta Van, Ruby Simmons, Prince Albert.
Class C, Pacing—Lady Ethel, Bobby Patches, Reignanti.
Class D, Trotting—Jennie B., Patricia, Derby Breeze, Agnes.

BERMUDA RACE WEDNESDAY.

MARBLEHEAD, June 1.—Half a score of yachts designed for ocean racing or close sailing will venture out into the Atlantic Wednesday on the third of the ocean races to the Cove of Bermuda in the interclub series. The start this year will be from Marblehead Rock at 11 A. M. instead of from New York, as on the two previous occasions, and the course therefore will be thirty-five miles farther, giving the racers 665 miles to cover before reaching the finish off St. David's Head Lighthouse.

INDIANS AND COWBOYS IN BATTLE TO DEATH LIFE IN WILD WEST AT WONDERLAND PARK

Grizzled Redskin warriors and American scouts give thrilling exhibitions of early days on the plains—Only one of the features at great outdoor resort.

"How, How."

Don't be afraid. The Indians are not barking at you. That's simply their way of saying "howdy" or "how do you do." They want to be your friends, and one can easily see that, for with the greeting they extend their tarnished and wrinkled hands sideways, in the old Western fashion to show that there is no scalping knife or battle axe concealed up the sleeve.

These grand old redskinned men of the plains are fast dying out, but there are a few left and they have learned to love and respect their old enemies, "the pale faces."

Sight for Both Young and Old.

And you can see them just as they were years ago when they started on the war path—in all their paints, big feathers, war lances and girdles.

It's a grand sight—one that both young and old will enjoy. Tall and straight, barefooted, save for a little decorated leather covering, and with their long, swinging stride, one can easily imagine these old-time warriors of the wilds not fooling even the best prairie horses in their long marches to and from mail coach or weary traveler.

They certainly look like bronze images sculped with life and soon they get to riding lustily, yelling and whooping.

Drop into Pawnee Bill's show, sit up and take notice when the shooting begins in the battle with the cowboys and Mexicans.

There are twenty-five, including three big chiefs, two interpreters, four squaws and three papooses. Yes, and Indian dogs. It's Indian village, all right, imported fresh from the Rosebud agency, and every brave in the bunch has a record, from the old Chief Ironshell down through the list of Sioux bucks.

Famous Warriors Among Them.

Some of them fought against whites when Custer fell, but now they are "good," and these particular redskins have in recent years been very useful to the government in handling the tribes of the Western reservations.

The two interpreters and the Indian children can talk fair English. The others don't care.

Jose Barrara is the name of the horseman. You pronounce his name "Hose," with accent on both syllables. Otherwise he'll think you are addressing one of the scouts and won't look around.

Jose is the celebrated vaquero. Jose is a wonderful horseman. When Jose straddles his chestnut steed his legs bow around and just fit the animals sides. He's been in the saddle as much of his life as out of it and his legs have conformed.

Jose hangs with one toe behind the pommel of his army saddle and picks up six handkerchiefs dropped twenty feet apart on the ground while his hurricane race horse is doing mad leaps.

Jose is also master of the Wild West stops—sort of stage manager for the border drama. He doesn't twist around on a pivot and disjoint his neck looking in your direction, but when he turns his horse turns and they seem like one. They know each others every move.

The whole troupe of cowboys are the same. Each has a specialty. They can mount and dismount like getting up and down from a chair.

But there is one bronco, Old Reuben, the Rocky Mountain stallion, who has the respect of all. Reuben doesn't care whether there is a show on or not. He'll kick the daylights out of everything approaching from the rear.

The cowboys disturb Reuben and keep him mad. They creep up when he isn't looking and vault over his hindquarters so high that he fans the air.

Game Too Deep for Reuben.

Reuben can't seem to fathom this game after thirty long years of it, so he just keeps his eyes open watching and waiting.

Little Chiquita, twenty inches high, has moved to Wonderland right into the row where the World in Motion Pilgrim's Progress and Paradise are. She is the tiniest and most talented lady in the land and has attracted the largest and best crowds at her various shows. She has been married after a runaway romances and speaks six different languages, including Spanish, which is her native tongue.

The free coupons which were published in yesterday's SUNDAY AMERICAN entitle the holder to admission and a ride on the chutes, a saving of twenty cents. The tickets are good to-day and to-morrow.

PEARY TO START FOR POLE JULY 1; NEEDS $25,000

NEW YORK, June 1.—Commander Robert E. Peary is planning to make another attempt to find the North Pole on July 1. The only thing which will prevent him from sailing on that date will be his failure to raise $25,000. He is in New York making active preparations for the trip.

The staunch steamer Roosevelt, which the Peary Arctic Club built for Commander Peary and which carried him and his little party on his last northward journey, has been overhauled and put in better condition than ever.

An auxiliary ship or collier will accompany the Roosevelt as far north as Etah, where Peary's coal depot in the last expedition was located.

Commander Peary said to-day: "If conditions are no worse in the next season than they were during the last voyage I shall hope to accomplish the objects of the expedition and return in about fifteen months—in October, 1909. I ought, however, to have supplies and equipment for a stay of three years.

"The total number aboard on leaving here will probably be twenty—the same as formerly. Charles Percy, my steward on two previous voyages, will go again, as will also Mathew Henson, my colored assistant. My surgeon is yet to be selected. I shall take aboard from twenty to twenty-five of the most effective Eskimo hunters and dog drivers, who will be accompanied by their wives and children, which will make the Eskimo contingent going north from the Whale sound region from forty to fifty. I shall require from 200 to 250 dogs.

"I am constantly in receipt of letters from would-be volunteers from all over the country, who do not appreciate that the bulk of my party will be selected by my captain. Nine out of every ten of these applicants state that the writer doesn't know how to do anything, but is willing to learn and to do anything that may be required. The ages of the applicants range from fourteen to, in one instance, about eighty years."

PICK CRANE AS COLLECTOR OF CAMPAIGN FUND

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Senator W. Murray Crane of Massachusetts will be chairman of the Republican national committee and the man who will collect and distribute the campaign fund for the election of that party's presidential ticket. Acting Chairman Harry S. New will be vice-chairman, according to the slate made by the party managers. It is expected that Senator Crane will have charge of the New York headquarters and Mr. New will direct the fight from Chicago.

This is a division of campaign management. Crane to handle the East and New the West. But the presidential nominee will depend upon Senator Crane to raise the "dough." He is an immensely wealthy manufacturer himself and one of the persons for his selection is the confidence reposed in him by trusts, corporations and all classes of millionaires.

If Taft is nominated for President Senator Crane will still be campaign manager for him, although he has been the most conspicuous figure in the United States Senate in the fight against the nomination of the Secretary of War for the head of the G. O. P. ticket.

But there is opposition to Senator Crane for his allotted task. Frank Hitchcock, Arthur Vorys and others feel that with him in charge of the campaign they will be given little part in it. They say that the Massachusetts Senator is not familiar enough with the technicalities of the political game to make good in the task to which he is assigned, and that he has never shown any great political sagacity and ability. Furthermore, they claim it would be both a violation of precedent and unwise policy to put in charge of the Taft presidential campaign a man who had been in charge of the fight against Taft's nomination.

But the objections to Senator Crane for chairman of the Republican National Committee are weak compared to the demand for him to serve in that office.

NEW YORK'S "400" TO BE CUT TO 300

NEW YORK, June 1.—Under the direction of several leaders of society, a new list of New York's social elect is being prepared. It will reduce Ward McAllister's famous "Four Hundred" to about three hundred.

The new roster will afford some striking innovations. No person will appear upon it who does not make its home in the city at least five months of the year, and a family tree clearly traced back to the year 1700 is a requisite.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt will be the social leaders of the city, if the wishes of those in charge of the new movement are carried out.

The names upon the new list will be printed upon vellum, and distributed only among the upper crust. Besides the names there will appear a brief family record, making the book, which will have no name, somewhat resemble Burke's Peerage.

Said to Be Preparing List.

It has been understood in social circle that one of the persons actively engaged in the preparation of the new social list is Telamon Cuyler of No. 61 East Seventy-second street.

"I am not preparing such a list," said Mr. Cuyler, "but I have heard that such a thing is in the course of formation. It is been a recognized need in the New York social world for some time for the guidance of persons wishing to give large affairs and who yet must have some definite limit."

It is significant in view of Mrs. Hetty Green's recent appearance in the social world that her name appears upon the list, and that she is supplied with a tongue family tree. Officially upon the list also is Mrs. Edward H. Green.

MAUDE ADAMS AT HARVARD

Practically the entire undergraduate body of Harvard University, with their friends and professors and instructors, are to greet Miss Maude Adams at Sanders Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday evenings of this week, when the noted actress appears in Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night."

The play is given under the auspices of the department of English at Harvard. The stage will be as bare of scenery as when the Avon bard produced his dramas before the London populace in the sixteenth century. This will be Miss Adams's first appearance in the role of Viola.

Miss Adams will give as al fresco presentation of "Twelfth Night" at New Haven before the Yale boys.

Reserved seats are on sale at Keith's University book store at $1.50. A limited number of admissions may be secured at $2 each at the auditor's office in Memorial Hall at 4 o'clock on the evenings of the

SENATORS SHRIEK AT MILL LOBBY

DRAPER RESENTS LETTER

Folks who live on Beacon Hill were wondering today how it happened that the most sporadic members of the State Senate joined to write to Acting Governor Eben Draper, stockholder in cotton mills and user of machinery for cotton mills, complaining to Mr. Draper about the Ark-ight Club lobby and its work against fifty-dollar bill, and forget to say a word about the New Haven-Merger lobby, the Telephone Bond lobby, the Rock King Ranke lobby, the money lobby and all the other lobbies big little, that infest the State House this year.

While the bell was ringing at the beginning of the first week of June reporters, especially in both houses was laughing at peculiar plight of the Democrats in the ate.

Voted for the Merger.

hate complaint against the textile lobby s headed by Senator Daniel H. Mahoney Holyoke, a member of the Committee on Roads, which recommended the merger Mahoney and all the other Democrats the Railroad Committee voted for the rger.

Bob' Southworth, Arthur Russell and oxen subalterns have been plugging the rger game for weeks. Up to date Mahoney has made no complaint against the road hustlers.

Nobody on the Hill expected anything e than just Acting Governor Draper dd oppose a fifty-four-hour bill for the ton mills. The Drapers have grown inously rich building machinery for cot mills. Some of the Draper riches have n turned over to individual bills for fledged security.

The Democratic Senators, however, ote to the Acting Governor asking him say the "one word" that would pass the y-four-hour bill

"Insulting Statement."

The Governor replied in 1,000 words, in leh he took occasion to say that the ry that Republicans in the Senate "have ed on important public measures tals ir entirely out of consideration for 'pol tical interests' is "an unwarranted and insulting statement."

With characteristic frankness, Acting Governor Draper goes on to say that he will try to go on record against a fifty-four hour bill. "It is a very serious question," he says, "whether it is wise at this time to further restrict by legislative enactment the industries of Massachusetts, and whether it would not be wiser to see what conditions were better before enacting any such legislation."

Like Dan Mahoney of Holyoke, the Senator from Hampden, Mr. Draper is man of an old family. Mr. Draper, Mr. Lee Telephone boley and the dozen and one other lobbies which have made Legislature of those the most brazen on record.

In publicity circles it is believed that the Hon. James H. Valley (Rep., Rep. Ind.) got up the "Letter to Draper" for the lobbyists. Rep. Ind.) wants the Democratic nomination for Governor this year.

At last accounts the Merger lobby was still on the job and nobody was yelling.

Tale of a Trained Cod, or How One Man Landed All the Big Fish Pools

Jerry Steinhardt and His "Banker" Are Now "In Bad" With Pilots.

Folks who went down the harbor to the fishing grounds yesterday on board the new and beautiful Satellite, with one eye on the sea and another on the fish, must have noticed that Captain Alfred Sorensen seemed to have something on his mind. The Satellite pulled out from the north side of Central wharf at 10 o'clock.

As the crowd poured along, Skipper Sorensen stood right at the door, a wellworried look on his face. But he wasn't licking.

All the old friends had some pleasant comment to make, but Sorensen didn't bend.

"Well, this is a dandy!"

"Fine boat, Al!"

"Mouth, Yap!"

"Gee, didn't it rain last night."

Everybody did his little monologue and passed along.

On steamed the Satellite for the place where the fish stories come from and, outside," but Sorensen couldn't keep still. He came out of his little perch up on the top floor whenever he could, turning over the steering gear to the deputy chief, and he walked around the deck.

No Corner on Big Prizes.

"You can bet your life," he would say, "that Jerry Steinhardt will never sail on this boat. No, sirree; no Jerry Steinhardt will cop the Satellite prizes for big fish not this Summer."

There was a good deal of mystery about it, as you may well imagine, and all the old salts from Lexington, Hingham, Hull, Scituate and the South End wondered what was up. It was not, however, until everybody had pulled in a few cod, tipping the scales all the way from 20 pounds to 25½ pounds, and the Satellite was nearly back to Atlantic avenue, along came Jerry in an, that the explanation would "tell all" to the marine reporters.

Mr. Clark Russell could probably give you the shop talk for the place, where the captain informed Boston that you can't catch the drift if you know it was in that dummy boat. Little sam and the rest of the Satellite, the "good ship" Satellite, if you please, have a good thing.

"Banker" and the Pool.

"It's full ten year ago," said Sorensen, "that Jerry Steinhardt and 'Banker' copped all the cod pools Sunday after Sunday on the fishing boat Charles L. Mather. That was my first boat.

"I don't suppose there's been a trained fish like 'Banker' since the world began or, for that matter, any kind of trained animal. Talk about your trained seals, your trained seals, and your dogs! Illiterates, every one of them.

"Why, I've seen 'Banker' for four Sundays, week in and week out, supported on the bridge of Jerry's head in front of the children in school. They called him the 'Professor.' He always brought down the house.

"I don't know how Steinhardt came by him, and it doesn't matter. At the start off, I suppose, he was just a pet, a fish. They kept him in a tank in the cabin down in Charter street.

"I first got wise when 'Banker' began to take on flesh that Jerry first took notice. for you see the bi-weekly pool article always announced that from that day on 'Banker' was to be numbered to all intents being Jarrh's friend. Mrs. Steinhardt could make bread. The fish was the talk of the neighborhood. A great red fish, and here him squealing in the kennel like street.

Fish Would Call For Water.

"When the Fall came 'Banker' was brought down into the flat and a tank was made for him. He was the most intelligent animal I ever saw. If they didn't change his water often enough he would raise his head and shoulders up out of the tank and make the queerest noise you ever heard.

"Little Rosella Steinhardt used to bring him in his table scraps, and she had him eat his bread right out of her hand. Then, when he'd had enough, he'd turn around and it might be, with a stong cup of tea.

"Well, that was the beginning, and the thought of evil never entered Jerry Steinhardt's head. Every day they took a walk along in the Spring. The Winter had been a hard one, and Steinhardt was making both ends meet with a good deal of difficulty. Feeding seven mouths is no fool of a job.

The Fish to the Rescue.

"Often, after the toddlers had been put to bed, Jerry and the wife would sit in the kitchen talking it over. It seemed hard to bear but 'Banker' must go. One night Jerry had a conference with Rosella, almost the last dollar. What were they going to do? When, suddenly, man and wife leaned their same strange idea. 'Banker.' He was reaching up out of the tank.

"'Change his water,' says Jerry.

"'I changed it not an hour ago,' says the wife.

"'Banker' shook his head.

"He wants to help us,' says Mrs. Steinhardt.

"A lady! Help thithtersticks,' says Steinhardt, but 'Banker' bobbed his head up and down and signed his tail.

"Maybe he wants us to eat him,' says Steinhardt, but the Missus let a scream out of her and held that piece of the child down wake up crying and 'Banker' dived down to the bottom of the tank.

"That settled it.

Training For the Prize.

"For twenty nights running, after that, Jerry Steinhardt would leave Charter street at midnight for Central wharf and his little rowboat. 'Banker' was in train for the big pool. And that's why I say that Jerry Steinhardt will never set foot on the boat.

"But why?" asked the marine reporter.

"Because I told you that for four years, week in and week out, Steinhardt and 'Banker' won every pool made up for the man who takes in the biggest cod of the day. Mary after he had 'Banker' trained so he could drop him off here in the water of a Saturday night and, I'll believe it after if that fish wasn't let out to the fishing grounds on Sunday in the wake of the 'Mather.'

Training for the trip down the harbor, following the marked bait.

Waited For Master's Hook.

Yes, sir—him weighing 17 pounds by that time—and held pace by hook after hook, one of them, boulders of them, brushing aside the smaller fish as if they were flies, to take in the Jerry Steinhardt bait and a good cod 'Banker' signed his head.

"It wasn't fair, and so long as I have my say about it, Jerry Steinhardt will never put foot on the Satellite, 'Banker,' never to a good cod that didn't know any better, has been dead and gone ten or more years, but if Steinhardt educated one fish he can educate another. He'll find no suckers on the Satellite."

Folks who went down yesterday on the 172-foot Satellite, probably the finest boat in the harbor, brought home hundreds of pounds of ignorant, ill-bred, foolish cod, but good only for table purposes.

SLASHES GIRL DURING FIT OF JEALOUS RAGE

MAKES ESCAPE AFTER ATTACK AT LOWELL HOME; SOUGHT BY POLICE.

LOWELL, June 1.—Maddened by jealousy and by the refusal of handsome Ella Conway, a waitress, to keep company with him longer, John Marcotte of Manchester, N. H., today called at her home, No. 12 John street, and slashed her head with a jack knife.

Leaving his victim unconscious and bleeding on the floor, Marcotte ran dashed out of the house and fled. He is the object of a hot chase by the police, who are watching every avenue of escape from the city and have issued a general alarm to authorities in New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

Miss Conway, who is an exceptionally pretty girl of twenty-six years, had her scalp cut open in the house and will recover.

Followed Her to Lowell.

Marcotte had followed her from Manchester, where he had kept company with her for some months. On Saturday he called at the home of Mrs. Mary Brosnan, for whom she works, and demanded to see her. Learning that she had gone to attorney, calling on her. Marcotte urged her to go away from her wife's home, but she refused, and after Marcotte had left the room in a rage she changed her dress and, leaving woman twice in the face with his fist, knocking her to the floor where he left her.

Marcotte also called at the boarding house where she was yesterday, but Mrs. Brosnan told him the girl was not a home. He then went to the Conway home and, at the house again, and before he could be told that the girl was not there, he discovered her in the next room. He attacked her with a jack knife and left her for dead, running away with him to Cupolo Lake. She refused, and told Marcotte to go back to Manchester and leave her alone, stating that she did not care for his attentions, as she had another friend.

Pulls Huge Knife.

At this Marcotte was so incensed that he pulled out a huge knife. Miss Conway screamed and ran toward the door, but before she could open it the man caught her and stabbed her in the right side of the head.

He is a divorced man and his former wife and two children live in the Lawrence road.

Lying on a couch at No. 12 John street, Miss Conway feebly told her story to a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN. She said:

"I met Marcotte in Manchester, when I was working at a boarding house there. He kept company for quite a while, but I soon saw that he was growing jealous and objected to my going anywhere with any other man. So I told him that we had best separate.

He is about forty years old and a divorced man. I could not marry him, be he is not a Roman Catholic and the church does not allow marriage with divorced persons.

Want Her to Go Away.

"I came to Lowell to get away from him, but he found where I was, though I don't know how, and I was much surprised when he appeared here last night. He wanted me to go to Cupolo Lake, but I refused. He then knocked me down with his fist. Then he again rallied to me, and told me that if I would not go with him he flourished the knife, for I was unable to get away.

Marcotte is about five feet ten inches tall, smooth shaven and wears a blue suit.

RECORD CROWD TAKES IN SIGHTS AT WONDERLAND

Thousands journeyed to Wonderland and Revere Beach to escape the hot spell yesterday and all records for attendances of last year have already been shattered.

The walk along the west side of the beach drive was so crowded that it was almost impossible for those on foot to get along, while out on the sands and ocean side the same thousands enjoyed the cooling breezes from the ocean.

The water looked good to the bathers and many were captured in during the day. These came from the cottages and hotels and Steinhardt's Bathing and Boarding house opens not at this season, no matter how hot it may be, and the crowd in the street.

At the other beach resorts it was about the same, Nantasket and the Lynn resort day. These came from the cottages and hotels and the police were kept busy the best hour in keeping the crowd moving.

Notwithstanding the big crowd there was not an accident nor a disturbance of any kind.

The crowd at Nantasket was a very orderly gathering of sightseers and the State police did not have a single arrest. The Hull police, however, collected seven on the charge of drunkenness.

DELAGRANGE IN ACCIDENT

ROME, June 1.—Only the fact that his aeroplane was but twelve feet to the air at the time saved Leon Delagrange from probably fatal injuries to-day. He was sailing his aeroplane in the Piazzi di Armi and to avoid a collision with the royal stand, where the queen dowager, Margherita, Crown Prince Constantine of Greece and many notables were seated, he brought the machine to a sudden stop, causing it to fall to the ground. The aeroplane was damaged slightly and Delagrange received a severe shaking up.

KING GUSTAV AT BERLIN PARADE

BERLIN, June 1.—King Gustav and Queen Victoria of Sweden watched 30,000 of the flower of the German army in manoeuvres here to-day. It was the annual Spring parade of the garrisons of Berlin and neighboring towns, and the Swedish rulers were the guests of Emperor William.

The Emperor and the King reviewed the parade on horseback.

HELD IN $3,000 IN FIRE PROBE

Charged with setting fire to the business block at Commercial and Pleasant streets, Malden, on Sunday evening, Mar. 24, Patrick J. Foggarty, who lives in the rear of No. 89 Main street, Everett, but who can quote a much cart on Pleasant street as joining the building where the fire was set, appeared in the Malden Police Court today. Judge Bruce found probable cause to hold him for the Grand Jury, bonds being placed at $3,000.

STANDARD OIL TRIAL BEGUN

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 1.—The case of the United States against the Standard Oil Company was called for trial to-day before Justice John R. Hazel in the United States District Court. The company is charged with accepting concessions on shipments from Olean to various places in Vermont.

WOMAN KNOCKED OFF CAR.

Mrs. Catherine Moran of No. 316 Central avenue, Milton, was badly shaken up and bruised by being knocked from the runningboard of a Dorchester avenue car near the Lower Mills car barn to-day.

SHOPLIFTERS HAD COWS TO MILK AT HOME

Five women of varied ages and types were arraigned in the Police Court today charged with shoplifting.

Rose Talbot, alias Grace Wilson, alias Susan Doe, arrested by Inspector Knox, was sentenced to one month in the House of Correction.

Mary E. Lewis was turned over to the probation officer. Jane Holt's case was continued.

Bridget Whitney and her seventeen year-old daughter, Mary E. Whitney, of Berry, were arrested Friday by Inspector Knox for stealing clothing, valued at $100 and $ Bills in a large department store. On the way to police headquarters Mary informed the inspector that they could not stay in Boston over night on account of a child left to be milked at their home. The novelty of the plea amused the inspector, and they he obtained bail for the two women. Their cases were continued until to-morrow.

DROWNS WITH 6 BOYS NEAR

Special to the Boston American.

LOWELL, June 1.—With a half dozen companions only a few feet away, yet powerless to aid him, Thomas Fay, the twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fay, best-known attorney in this city, was drowned in "Baby's Hole," just below Hunt Falls on the Merrimac at noon today. The boy was carried down by the swift waters later.

Young Fay and a half dozen other boys were in bathing. The Fay lad, who could barely swim, got beyond his depth and was carried out by the swift current. The other lads could not aid him because none of them could swim.

FUNERAL FOR BALL CHILDREN TO-MORROW

BROCKTON, June 1.—In a quiet thrift upon in Melrose Court this morning, the end of the first-born child of Mr. and Mrs. John Ball of this city, little Thomas and Grace Ball, the unfortunate victims of a deprived mother, will be laid to rest to-morrow. The services will be of the simplest nature. Prayers will be read by the Rev. Thomas H. F. Smith, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, where the children attended Sunday School.

CUTS HAIR THAT HELD BABY GIRL UNDER TROLLEY

Special to the Boston American.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 1.—With her baby locks caught in the wheel of a trolley car, two-and one-half year-old Annie Kelley of Pawtucket was rescued from being dragged under the car wheel to-day till her father severed the hair with his jack knife. The little girl's head and shoulders were fractured. She is now on the dangerous list in a hospital.

Annie was playing in the roadway near her home on Broadway, Borden street. At the corner of Plain street the motorman was trying to get out of the way of the trolley approaching from one direction and a team which was coming from the other way.

She ran into the car, while Motorman Francis Luther brought to a stop as quickly as possible. Before he could stop for the child they found her lying beside the car with her unbound hair pinned to the track by one of the forward wheels.

Mrs. Michael A. Kelley, who had heard the commotion, ran to the child and, grabbing a jack knife that happened to be handy, severed the hair and cut the hair, freeing his daughter from the wheel's grip.

The child was bleeding from the mouth, indicating internal injuries, in addition to the two fractures.

PIANOS AND ORGANS.

Fire Losses on Pianos

A slight blistering of the cases by the heat is quickly remedied—a thorough scraping and rubbing down and revarnishing in our repair dept. makes the piano as good as new—a thorough inspection of all the parts, and then our expert tuner completes the job—then the beautiful piano is sent to our sacrifice floor and the economical buyer gets a fine instrument for almost nothing. All makes have been coming in—the best pianos in the world—and are sacrificed at once.

You Can't Help Admiring Ryan After All

He Is So Thorough. It Is a Pity That You, the VOTERS, Are Not Asked to Do What He Does

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

In the New York jungle, politely called "civilization," there are a number of powerful big animals roaming about and doing what they please.

Thomas F. Ryan is one of the most powerful and one of the biggest. A mighty hunting animal is Thomas F. Ryan, and a very intelligent one, too. No wonder he roams up and down his jungle unhindered, victorious, killing what he wants to kill, enjoying himself.

You really can't help admiring his thoroughness. And you can't help wishing that the people, the little, timid monkey-folk of the jungle, might have part of his power and determination.

One little feature in the career of this large, prowling person is very impressive.

Look at his attitude toward District Attorney Jerome, and Governor Hughes, and see how absolutely THEY fit into his machine and into his purposes.

Mr. Ryan needed Jerome in the District Attorney's office, and he got him there. He has had to use Mr. Jerome in what would be called a very "raw" manner. Times were pretty shaky; it was no time for splitting straws. And while Mr. Ryan would have been glad to use Jerome carefully and cautiously, he couldn't afford to do it. He had to "go the limit." Under ordinary conditions, there would have been very good chances of Jerome's removal by the Governor. Charges, as a matter of fact, have been prepared and are heard officially. It isn't wise, it doesn't pay, for the big men to let their little men go to the wall. THAT DISCOURAGES OTHER LITTLE MEN, that might be useful.

Therefore it would not be a good thing for Mr. Ryan if Mr. Jerome should be dumped out of office by a Governor. And there you behold the wisdom of Ryan, and the wonderful success of his plans. He has his Mr. Jerome for one kind of work, and then HE HAS HIS GOVERNOR, MR. HUGHES, FOR ANOTHER KIND OF WORK.

Just as Ryan wanted to make Mr. Jerome District Attorney, so he worked to make Mr. Hughes Governor. And just as Jerome has been working as District Attorney to make Ryan happy, so Hughes is working as Governor to make Ryan happy.

You have Mr. Jerome, who finds everything in the Metropolitan Street Car Trust perfectly admirable, and all that is good and noble. And you have Mr. Hughes, who is filled with a noble indignation when anybody tries to pass a law for a five-cent fare to Coney Island, or to interfere with the well-arranged plans of the insurance gentlemen.

MR. RYAN IS AN INSURANCE GENTLEMAN, AMONG OTHER THINGS, YOU KNOW.

Mr. Ryan needs a District Attorney, and he has him. He finds himself compelled to make that District Attorney do pretty difficult things, things that might persuade a squeamish Governor to chop off a District Attorney's head. But nobody can interfere with the District Attorney except the Governor, and, as the public will come to learn more and more, Mr. Ryan can manage the Governor quite neatly, just as he can manage the District Attorney.

That is what you might call a very perfect system. Pick out your District Attorney, and then make him do what you want him to do, for your special benefit, and then have in Albany a Governor, also of your selection, also under your influence, and be able to assure the little man in the little District Attorney's office that the bigger man in the big Governor's office won't bother him.

Very few do these things as well as Mr. Ryan. You find one big man with ONE office-holding gentleman in his control, or TWO or THREE. But you find very few with Ryan's grasp of the situation. He begins right at the beginning. He owns the little political boss leaning against the cheap saloon, and the man that owns that boss belongs to him, and the bigger man that owns the man that owns the boss belongs to him.

Able Mr. Ryan, King of the Jungle, has his District Attorney, he has his Governor, and that isn't half of it. He has his private corporation lawyer, Root, acting as his Secretary of State.

It's really a very able arrangement.

What a pity it is that some of the voters haven't got the energy, the interest in public affairs that Mr. Ryan has.

The voters can't get ANYBODY into ANY office. They can't get a man to represent them ANYWHERE. And Ryan can get ANYBODY to represent him ANYWHERE in ANY office.

If the voters of the country, the millions of them, could work directly, openly, determinedly, and intelligently, as Ryan does, THIS WOULD BE A REPUBLIC.

But inasmuch as the voters don't do anything at all, and the men like Ryan DO work, and HAVE the power, and the determination, it is a charming imitation of a republic, the outside of the machine being labelled "republic," and the inside works belong to Ryan and his associates.

The beautiful part of it is that not all the men whom Ryan controls ACTUALLY KNOW THAT HE CONTROLS THEM.

It is quite likely that Mr. Jerome doesn't know to what extent he belongs to Ryan. It is probable that Mr. Hughes doesn't know to what extent he belongs to Ryan.

Mr. Ryan doesn't go to a man and say, "I'll make you District Attorney or make you Governor if you'll do what I say."

Both Hughes and Jerome would indignantly resent that suggestion. Both Jerome and Hughes mean to be, and BELIEVE themselves to be, absolutely independent.

Ryan is more intelligent than that, and that's what makes him a big man. Occasionally he himself does the "raw" thing. When he goes to work with Alton Root he makes no bones about it. He says, "Root, here is so much money. Get up in court and argue as I tell you." He swore under oath that he directed Root to go personally and manage his insurance deals. But with men a little more sensitive he acts differently. What he does is this:

HE MAKES SURE IN ADVANCE THAT THEY ARE THE KIND OF MEN HE WANTS. And then he puts them in office. What a pity the people cannot make sure that certain men are the kind of men that THEY WANT, and then put THEM in office.

Ryan studied Mr. Hughes—it doesn't take him very long to find out what a man really is at the bottom. He found out about his activities as corporation lawyer, he found out where his ambition, interests and his natural inclinations would lead him. He said: "That's the kind of a man I want for Governor." AND THAT'S WHY MAYOR RYAN HAS FOR GOVERNOR.

And so it was with Mr. Jerome. He studied that man for a minute or two. He got the sort of inside information that he wanted, realized the effect that Mr. Jerome's personality would have on a certain community, and then he said: "That's the sort of a man we want in the District Attorney's office. That's the man that will turn four tack somersaults in an ordinary little murder case, and then coo like a dove in a case involving the exploitation of the entire city."

So he made Jerome his District Attorney. And with a safe Governor that won't remove that District Attorney, what nice, peaceful nights Mr. Ryan has!

He is a BIG man. It would be a good thing if we could hire him after a while, when he has got all the money he wants—THAT IS TO SAY, ALL THERE IS—to do a little work for the voters. He really might do it for them, just for a change, just to enjoy himself. And you can't imagine how quickly he would have different men from Hughes and Jerome in office, if he really undertook to represent the people.

Lesson X.—The Crab.

HERE we have an-oth-er An-i-mal from the Sea. You can tell the Crab by its Stiff, Awk-ward Walk, which might be im-proved if it would Con-sent to Wear Rub-ber Heels.

Besides in the Sea, you will al-so find the Crab in Salad, where it oft-en makes its home at this time of year.

If the Crab breaks one of its Legs it throws a-way the Piece that is Left and grows a New One. If Men did that, what a Sad World it would be for Mak-ers of Ar-ti-fi-cial Limbs!

The Crab is very fond of Toe. If you go in Bath-ing be-side a Crab he will Catch your Toe in a Pain-ful Grip with his Strong Claws. Do not Blame the Crab for this, be-cause he has no Toes at all and he can-not un-der-stand what you want with Ten. To re-move the Crab from your Toe without pain, hold your Foot in Boil-ing Wa-ter un-til he Lets Go.

An-oth-er kind of Crab is called the Horse-shoe Crab. He is called this be-cause he looks as much like a Horse-shoe as a Tor-toise-shell Comb does.

There is al-so the Soft Shell Crab, which is nev-er so Happy as when Fried.

Is not the Crab in-ter-est-ing when studied bi-o-log-ic-al-ly?

Lesson XI.—The Bear.

THE Bear is of two kinds: 1, which has met our Pres-i-dent and is now a Rug; and, 2, which has nev-er seen our Pres-i-dent and does not Want To.

1. Of the Dead Kind, Bi-o-log-y teaches us Noth-ing, except that they are Ex-pen-sive.

2. Of the Live Ones, which are too fierce to study, Bi-o-log-y tells us Noth-ing, ex-cept of these in Cages or in Cir-cus-es. These Bears will eat Buns, but not as many as a Health-y Boy.

3. There is al-so the Ted-dy Bear, which is full of Saw-dust, like a Boy who has eaten five Bags of Pea-nuts.

If you want to see an Im-i-ta-tion of a Bear, try to tell your Father what you have learned of Bi-o-log-y when he is Read-ing The Am-er-ic-an at Break-fast.

Lesson XII.—The Fly.

THE Fly is a Lit-tle An-i-mal that spends most of its time Buz-zing. You can study it in your own Home, be-cause the Fly does not care about Screens, which are Prin-ci-pal-ly Use-ful to keep it from Get-ting Out.

The Fly is so bus-y that it will not stay on one Spot long, ex-cept on Fly-paper.

If you go to Sleep in the Day-time the Fly will tickle your nose till you Wake Up. This should make you A-shamed to Sleep in the Day-time, which you should be Stud-y-ing Bi-o-log-y to help you be-come a Great Bus-i-ness Man.

Do not let this Les-son on the Fly make you afraid to eat Huckle-ber-ry Pie.

Motherhood as a Science

A subject worthy of the best thought of all women, whether in or out of clubs

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

WOMEN'S clubs have done a great work in many ways. They have broadened the minds of the sex; they have given many women larger ideals of life than mere social pleasure or prominence; they have led to a better understanding of woman by woman, and they have helped to eliminate to a degree the petty jealousies which of old, when woman was merely the house ornament of man, caused her to resent another woman's beauty or charm.

Added to this, clubs have been a means of focused power for the accomplishment of work for universal good by women.

The real reforms in Philadelphia political circles began with the women's clubs.

Therefore it is a misfortune when any association of women makes itself ridiculous or undignified by quarrels, only worthy of political circles of men seeking not the public good or the advancement of the race, but personal place and power.

A noble and worthy society, of which I am a charter member, meets sometimes in Washington to elect its national leader.

I attended but one of these gatherings, for so disgraceful were the exhibitions of temper and ill-will by members seeking to advance the interests of their special candidate that, to preserve my affection and respect for my sex, it necessitated a prolonged absence from such scenes.

Give me the woods and the solitudes rather than the club room of excited women fighting with frenzy over the election of a president or over the discussion of a parliamentary law.

Stop for one moment and consider how, in the light of the world's history, the position of even the President of the United States is unimportant. Who can say off hand, if asked suddenly, the names of the Governors of Connecticut, New Hampshire, Wisconsin or Florida?

The election of these men was a great political event at the time, but few have the ability to even recall their names now. Then how utterly insignificant is the position of a president of a woman's club or a man's club!

Great Work for Women

CONSIDER how undignified and petty and unreligious is the attitude of a woman who loses her temper and descends to a quarrel over such a matter!

The women of this day have great work to do.

There is need to conserve all our vital forces to fill properly the important positions open to us—positions waiting for the worthy and the willing and the competent.

We need to inform ourselves regarding the conditions of working women and children in the land. We should study the subject of right education for children; an education which will put an end to our present unsatisfactory, unwise, and often times pernicious system of cramming all young minds with one diet, irrespective of taste or ability to assimilate it; a process as cruel and barbarous as the stuffing of geese for the making of pate-de-foie-gras.

Women need to study to-day as they have never yet studied what constitutes good motherhood and what is the meaning of prophet bringing up a child.

It does not mean giving the child good food, good clothes, expensive nurses and tutors and college education.

It means studying the child as a distinct personality, understanding it as a musician understands his instrument, and playing upon that immortal instrument, to make it produce exquisite music.

A score of times at least in these columns I have likened a child to a piano and the parent to a violinist, and insisted that the same methods should apply to both.

It is gratifying to have the theories so often put forward strengthened and honored by so great a scientist as Luther Burbank. It would be excellent work for all women's clubs to study Mr. Burbank's words and work and to put his ideas as far as lies in their power into practice.

Every Woman Can Help

THE women who are not mothers should endeavor to help women who are, to higher ideals of the responsibility of motherhood.

Just as the general, who stands apart and watches the battle, understands where the strength and where the weakness in the ranks exists, so the woman without children often sees and understands the science of rearing children better than the average mother.

Every woman has been a daughter, and in her own heart knows where her parents failed in training her; and this knowledge entitles any woman on earth to the privilege of talking understandingly on the subject of good parentage, especially if she supplements her experience with thought and study.

To look after the cleanliness and beauty of the town where she makes her home, and to do all she can to elevate the ideals of the citizens on the subjects of clean streets, good roads and attractive tree sheltered avenues is excellent work for women's clubs.

It was the continual protest of the women of New York which in the last ten years caused the law forbidding the use of public conveyances as cuspidors to be enacted.

Let the women who belong to clubs in America take a larger view of life and its opportunities and responsibilities; let them be ashamed to descend to foolish bickerings over foolish questions, and let them prepare for the colossal issues which are imminent—issues which will require all the concentration and co-operation of the best minds of the era to meet understandingly.

Little Editorials from the People

APPROVAL FROM MR. BROOKS

Boston Public Schools,
Superintendent's Office,
May 29, 1908.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I notice in your issue of May 26th an editorial entitled, "What Is the Trouble With Our Educators?"

If you were not a busy man I should ask you to read a copy of the "Brooks and Hubbard Composition Rhetoric," because the entire book is based exactly on the things which you are defending in your editorial. It is very much to be regretted that this principle cannot be given more rapid adoption. It is fair to the Boston schools to say that the new course of study adopted by the Board of Superintendents and later by the School Committee has all through the English portion of it this same belief.

Yours sincerely,
STRATTON D. BROOKS,
Superintendent of Public Schools.
